Widowed Queen

Faces:

(1) Five Years IN BLACK (2) Life Ban ON GAY FROCKS

Cairo, May 18.

Queen Nazli, grief-stricken since the death of her husband, King Fuad of Egypt, has spent most of the time with her four young daughters in her own apartments in the Cairo palace.

She refuses to receive visitors. When the Premier called to offer condolences she would not see him. Instead she sent the Grand Chamberlain to express her thanks.

The Queen is the forty-one-year-old daughter of Sabry Pasha, a Turkish nobleman. She married King Fuad in 1919.

AS QUEEN

She has been a leader of fashion, wearing gay-coloured dresses of exquisite taste—all of them from Paris—betting her vivacious temperament.

AS QUEEN MOTHER

She will not renounce the veil. She will wear black for five years. Even after that extra long period of mourning Court etiquette will never again allow her to wear coloured dresses.

LAST JOURNEY

Twenty-one cannon shots, fired at one-minute intervals, announced to a nation in mourning that their King had started on the first stage of his last journey: the coffin being taken to Abdin Palace, a two-hour procession.

GAOL SENTENCE ON WOMAN MOTORIST

BAIL PENDING AN APPEAL

LICENCE SUSPENDED FOR LIFE

A woman motorist was sentenced to prison for two months at Epsom police court recently for driving a motor-car in a manner dangerous to the public. Her licence was suspended for life.

Notice of appeal was given, and Mrs. Winn was allowed bail. The Bench declined to restore the licence pending the appeal.

A summons for driving without due care and attention was dismissed under the Probation of Offenders Act. On a summons for failing to stop after an accident Mrs. Winn was fined 20s. She had to pay £6 10s. 6d. costs and her licence was endorsed.

The offence was stated to have occurred at Fetcham, Surrey.

CYCLIST'S LEGS BROKEN

For the police it was stated that at 10 p.m. on Jan. 8 Mrs. Winn's car pulled out to pass another and hit a woman cyclist, whose legs were broken.

Mrs. Winn did not stop. There was found near the scene of the accident a door-handle and the reflector of the near-side lamp.

The next morning Mrs. Winn went to the police-station and said that she understood that the police were looking for a green car. She was driving her car the previous night and knocked into a sign at a roundabout, but she did not know there had been an accident with a cyclist. She did not, she said, see a cyclist.

A solicitor who appeared for Mrs. Winn said his client had been driving for six years, and there had never been any charge against her before.

The chairman of the magistrates said they had been unable to find any redeeming feature in the case.

OUT AT THE MATSHED—DON'T POISON YOURSELF WITH TINNED FOOD

Washington, May 20.

Food poisoning can be avoided if "common sense precautions are exercised" in the opinion of Dr. William DeKleene, medical director of the American Red Cross.

Bacteria are the most common form of food poisoning, Dr. DeKleene said, because they produce toxic products in canned food that has not been properly sterilized and in other foods that have not been properly refrigerated, stored and handled.

He said chemicals accidentally mixed with foods also causes poisoning but is far less common than that caused by bacteria.

"If all home canning were done by the pressure cooking method, food poisoning would be far less common," Dr. DeKleene said. He pointed out that "putting up" fruits and vegetables in the home under unsanitary conditions, without knowledge of scientific methods to prevent bacterial contamination, may be responsible for illness.

He exploded a common fallacy by saying: "There is no more harm in leaving food in an open tin can than transferring it to another clean receptacle. Proper refrigeration is the important consideration here."

Dr. DeKleene listed the following physical indications of food spoilage:

1. The content of the cans which bulge should be treated with suspicion.
2. Leakage around the rubber "cap" rings of jarred produce is not difficult to detect, and it indicates that food in the jar has probably been contaminated.
3. When a can or jar has been opened the presence of bubbles, should warn the housewife of danger. Liquid in a glass jar should be clear to denote proper preservation.

Dog Gets Pension Of $10.80 Yearly From Yugoslavia

Belgrade, May 20.

Hector, Yugoslavia's most famous police dog, shares honours with the British Parliament's renowned cat, Rufus.

Like the legislative cat, Hector has been awarded a life long pension, so at the age of 10 he retires after valiant service. The dog was stationed at Rudnica and he enjoyed a countrywide reputation for his record of catching thieves and other criminals.

While on active duty Hector was allowed $1.25 a month for delicacies. His pension is 40 dinars (90 cents) a month.—United Press.

Jubilee Stamp Set Now Worth £2 10s.

How Refugees Smuggle Fortunes

FORTUNES can be made out of everything. There are people who live in affluence on the proceeds of waste paper, scrap metal, and things which most people throw away. Most people stick stamps on envelopes, post them, and forget about them. Other make their living out of them.

This month, in the Holborn Restaurant, the annual English Stamp Bourse was opened. Professional dealers from all over the Continent and from America gathered round small tables covered with white cloths. And, pulling fortunes from their pocket-books, concluded in whispers deals which will probably total about £50,000.

These men and women who live on postage stamps are smiling happily this year. The Jubilee stamps, listed the trade sky-high and stamps prices are soaring.

Last year it was said that so many Jubilee stamps had been printed that they would be valueless. The actual result was to interest so many people in stamps that the dealers cannot buy more than 10 per cent. of what they sell, and a set of Jubilee stamps of face value 2s. 3d. is now worth 50s.

Experts think, however, that the boom is nearly over, and they are looking forward to the King Edward VIII stamps to send another wave of prosperity through the philatelic world.

STAMPS FOR BRAIN PILLS Stamp dealers always seem to have an abundance of amusing and romantic stories about their dealings. Many of them deal with the natives of West Africa who send them parcels of stamps and demand most unusual merchandise in payment.

They ask for highly coloured ties, top hats, Bibles and boots, and a thousand other incongruous things. One dealer said that he had received a parcel of stamps from a native with a request for a box of brain pills in exchange. The native complained that his brain was only 75 per cent. efficient, and he wanted to make it 100 per cent.

This dealer sent him a box of famous pills that might or might not improve his brainpower, but would certainly do him no harm, and so far there has been no complaint from West Africa.

Several of the dealers commented on the fact that stamp prices in Germany are very high. The reason is that stamps are an "excellent" investment in times when money values are uncertain. A stamp, like a good picture or a fine piece of furniture, has a permanent value.

It is common knowledge amongst these dealers that many refugees from Germany are bringing their fortunes out of the country in rare stamps.

"Stamps are very small and can be easily hidden," one of them said. "Besides, customs officials are not usually experts on stamps and do not know the value of them, even if they find them amongst the travellers' luggage."

SOLD AT A LOSS "The owners sell them again outside Germany, and although they lose about 20 per cent. of their money because of the higher stamp prices in Germany, it is better than leaving their fortunes behind them altogether."

There are no stamps in this year's bourse so far as could be discovered, of a very high value. This year the highest prices are between £400 and £500. But the stamp dealers are not complaining. They are making their money these days in cheaper stamps, and they cannot buy enough of them to meet the tremendous increase in the demand.

Thurston "Returns" From Grave

FAMED MAGICIAN

New York, May 24. Believers in the supernatural are convinced that the late Howard Thurston, famous magician, has at least completed one leg of his promise to "return" from the grave.

Sceptics attributed it to a stray April breeze or a wobbly nail in the wall. Magician Joseph Dunninger reported that the idol in a glass case—which Thurston gave him years ago and promised to break to prove there was life after death—has moved slightly.

An oil painting of a Hindu snake charmer, which hung two feet above it, crashed to the floor. Apparently it struck the idol case in its passage downward.

"I honestly don't believe Thurston had anything to do with it," said Dunninger, noted illusionist and exposé of fake mediums. "I don't believe in spiritualism, I don't believe in the dead returning. But I feel honour bound to the incident."

Dunninger said the painting, in a heavy gilt frame, had hung on his bedroom wall for the last four years. Below it, also suspended by a wire hook on the wall, was the small glass case containing the idol.

It is of a rare grayish-green hue, purporting to be an image of Ramesses II., which the late Thurston brought back from Luxor, Egypt, and presented to Dunninger 12 years ago. "If I can come back," he told him, "I will smash the case to prove there is life after death."

"I heard a heavy crash," Dunninger said. "I naturally was startled and my first impulse was to look at the idol case. I lit my light and found that the painting above it had dropped to the floor, striking the idol case but not damaging it."

"Houdini left me a 10 word code message. Sir Arthur Conan Doyle did likewise. None of those fellows ever came back. And I don't believe Thurston ever will come back, either. 'I'm on the other side of the fence.'"

GIANTS THAT DWARF OUR "PUNY SUN"

Seen Through "Peephole" In The Milky Way

New York, May 20.

OUR sun, once regarded as the proud ruler of the universe, is more and more being made to feel its insignificance as astronomers, nightly peering at the heavens, compare it to a tallow candle in contrast with some stars which range the heavens.

To-day comes news of the sighting of a new cluster of 50,000 stars, many much larger than "our relatively puny sun."

METEORI FELS 200 TREES

"Mass Of Flame"

Barcelona, May 18. A HUGE meteorite, falling at enormous speed, crashed to earth at Villarejo de las Fuentes, in the province of Cuenca, Southern Spain, to-day, uprooting more than 200 trees and splitting great rocks.

The phenomenon was witnessed by Hermilio Fuente, a local miller, who said it was preceded by lightening and a "mass of flame" followed by deafening thunder.

Travelling from south-west to north-west, the meteorite ploughed a way through a dense wood of oaks. Approaching the road from Teruel to Tarancon, it lost speed, and eventually came to rest on property belonging to a local resident.

WOMAN CHIEF OF CLAN SOCIETY

MRS. FLORA MACLEOD ELECTED

Edinburgh, May 18. CLANSMEN gathered here from all parts of the Highlands to-night and elected a woman as leader of the Clan Macleod Society.

She is Mrs. Macleod of Macleod, one of the first women to be offered the eagle feathers symbolising the honour. The wider question of chieftainship of the whole clan is to be considered later.

Mrs. Macleod is the elder daughter of the late Sir Reginald Macleod, for many years head of the clan, and her election was the unanimous wish of members of the society.

HER ISLAND HOME

The new chieftain of the society was not present at to-night's meeting, but from her home in historic Dunvegan Castle, on the Isle of Skye, she told me that she was ready and eager to assume her responsibilities.

Following the death of Mrs. Macleod's father, at the age of 88 last year, who left no male heir, it was claimed that the chieftainship fell on Mr. Hugh Vernon Macleod, an Australian. He declared, however, that he would abide by the decision of Sir Reginald's daughters.

Mrs. Macleod is already accepted by many members of the clan as their hereditary leader.

Mrs. Catriona Macleod, of Ardgour, aged 16, is claiming the chieftainship of the Macleods of Ardgour.

A few years before the war Miss Menzies of Menzies, on the death of her brother Sir Neil, the last baronet and chief of the clan, was elected by clansmen in his stead.

This discovery is revealed by Dr. Harlow Shapley, director of Harvard Observatory, who has found a cosmic peephole in the Milky Way which enables man to look into the great beyond.

The Milky Way, shaped like a cart-wheel, with the earth at the end of one of its "spokes," has always been regarded as forming an impenetrable barrier of great dust clouds to even the most powerful telescopes.

But Harvard astronomers have now come across this "window" through which 147 great new stars have been observed.

Dr. Shapley describes the "window" to the American Philosophical Society as giving access to the "great open spaces" of the cosmos.

He estimated that 100 of the new stars are more than 30,000 light years away—and a light-year is 6,000,000,000,000 miles.

The cluster of which these form part is called a "tramp" because it is wandering through space apparently unattached.

Ladies Will Do The Smoking In A.D. 1966

—SAYS EXPERT

Omaha, Neb., May 24.

The ladies will do all the smoking 30 years from now, Dr. Victor E. Levine, Creighton College bio-chemist and nutrition expert, has predicted.

The men—a perverse lot, he said—will come to believe that smoking is effeminate, and will give it up altogether.

At one time smoking was strictly a man's prerogative, the scientist recalled. But so was the use of perfume.

"In the reign of Queen Elizabeth, parliament passed a law forbidding women to use perfume because it was feared there would not be enough for both sexes."

But the women went right on using it—more than ever. "Perfume," Dr. Levine said, "became an article of use for the effeminate, and men abandoned it altogether."

He said that what's going to happen to smoking, and predicted dire things for the appearance of the feminine species.

"Smoking takes away from the young woman the softness, smoothness and delicacy of the skin that is the charm of youth," Dr. Levine warned. "It takes away the clear and vital complexion of youth and brings in its stead the rough and muddy complexion of age. It removes the lustre and attractiveness from the 'windows of the soul.' And the more a woman smokes, the more make-up she requires."

The scientist smokes cigarettes himself—moderately.—United Press.

SUN-BATHING IN STRATOSPHERE WOULD BE FATAL

ALTHOUGH giving the impression of spectacular achievements undertaken solely for adventure, stratosphere flights are actually the most scientific endeavours of modern airmanship.

Captain Albert Stevens and Captain Orvil Anderson, of the United States Army Air Corps, during their world-record flight to 72,395 feet (13.71 miles) last November, carried scientific instruments inside and outside the gondola of their balloon and obtained much valuable information for the future of flying.

An analysis of this is presented in the May number of the National Geographic Magazine.

At great heights the upper sky was found to be black. At 13½ miles the sun's brightness was 20 per cent. greater than when viewed from the ground.

Contrary to expectation, radio signals decreased in strength above 60,000 ft. This has not been fully explained. It is thought that the low atmospheric pressure surrounding the transmitter may have been the cause. The bombardment of the atmosphere by cosmic rays increases its electrical conductivity; at 61,000 ft. the conductivity was 81 times greater than at sea level. Vertical cosmic rays were found to be 55 times more numerous at 57,000 feet than at sea level.

Ozone in the atmosphere acts as a screen against the passage of short ultra-violet waves of light, and spectra photographs taken in the stratosphere indicated that if all the ultra-violet waves got through to earth human skin would be destroyed by a few minutes' exposure to sunlight.

On the other hand, a decrease in the earth-reaching ultra-violet waves would have a starving effect on humanity, and also permit a great increase in bacteria.

Samples of air taken above 70,000 ft. were brought to the ground, and analysis showed practically no change in the oxygen to nitrogen ratio found at ground levels.

Heir To Rothschild Millions Is Born: News To K.C. In Court

As Mr. St. John Hutchinson, K.C., opened a case at the Old Bailey recently the telephone rang in one of the rooms below, bringing the news that a son had been born to his daughter. That baby may one day become the head of the English branch of the Rothschilds and inherit its millions.

The K.C.'s daughter, formerly Miss Barbara Hutchinson, married Mr. Victor Rothschild, nephew and heir to Lord Rothschild, in December 1933.

She enhanced the Jewish faith shortly before the wedding. Mr. Victor Rothschild, twenty-six years old, is a scientist and Fellow of Trinity College, Cambridge. Their home is at Merton Hall, Cambridge. They have one other child, a girl, born in 1934.

DESIRE A SON Both Mr. and Mrs. Victor Rothschild had desired a son to carry on the family name.

The telephone call which brought the news from Cambridge to Mr. Hutchinson was received by his clerk, who was fetched out of court by one of the Old Bailey attendants.

The clerk pencilled a note to his "chief," and passed it to him. Mr. Hutchinson read it, smiled, and went on with his speech.

King Edward recently visited the Royal Mews with Sir Arthur Erskine, Crown Equerry, as part of his programme of inspection of all departments of the Court.

Earlier in the day the King sat for the portrait head which will appear on the new Edward VIII. coinage and on medals granted by His Majesty.

The King also paid a private and unexpected visit to the show of the Rhododendron Association at the Royal Horticultural Society's Hall, Vincent-square, Westminster. He was received by Mr. Lionel de Rothschild, and spent an hour at the show.

ROYAL HORSES TO BE PENSIONED

KING INSPECTS MEWS

It is probable that several of King George's riding horses, which are at present in the Royal Mews at Buckingham Palace, will soon be pensioned off and put out to grass at Hampton Court or Windsor.

Making English The World's Language

SIMPLER SPELLING URGED

English is advocated as a world language in a letter addressed to the Press and signed by a number of distinguished people. The letter adds that, though English is spoken by nearly 200,000,000 as their native language, and its grammar is the simplest in Europe, its spelling is the most difficult and irregular.

The letter continues: "In learning English foreigners need to learn not only one, but two languages—one for writing and another for speaking. Many teachers tell us our difficult spelling causes the loss of at least a year in the education of our children and students."

"There is now a widely expressed and increasing desire that the possibility and desirability of simplifying English spelling and pronunciation should be investigated and considered by a small representative committee, including scholars, teachers, publishers and business men. We desire to support the request for the appointment of such a committee."

The signatories are: Lord Baden-Powell, the Archbishop of York, Sir Hart Sligh Gour, Sir W. H. Hudson, Sir G. B. Huxley, Mr. Aldous Huxley, Sir Julian Huxley, Sir Samuel Instone, Sir William Jowett, Dr. Joseph M. Lemaux, Agent-General for Quebec, Prof. A. Lloyd James, Sir John Murray, Prof. Gilbert Murray, Mr. Rhododendron, Mr. Richard Ford, Sir Frederick Pollock, Miss Eleanor Rathbone, M.P., Mr. Walter Rymann (Chief Inspector of Schools, University of London), Sir Michael Sadler, Sir John Shaw, Sir Daniel Stevenson, Mr. John Stewart (Lord Provost of Glasgow), Sir William J. Thomas, Sir Montagu de P. Webb, Mr. Sydney Waller, Bishop Welton, Dr. H. G. Wells, The Bishop of Salisbury, Dr. Donaldson, had also signed the letter.

CINEMA NOTES

That epoch-making polar trip, starring Admiral Richard E. Byrd and his loyal band of fifty-five followers, has been recorded for all time in Paramount's "Little America," an actual scene by scene account of the intrepid explorer's second Antarctic expedition as taken by two cameramen who accompanied the expedition, which is being shown at the Queen's Theatre to-day. Every thrilling event of this hazardous undertaking in this truth-in-stranger-than-fiction production, is crammed with suspense, drama and romance in every foot of film. Isolated themselves of their own free will, filled with the spirit of adventure, this courageous expedition set out to conquer the frozen wastes of the South Pole, determined and ready to face any danger, every hardship through the icebergs and dangerous pack ice to the 70-foot high barrier to "Little America," exactly as they left it a few years before when they made their first trip.

"The Great Impersonation"
Two new and different Edmund Lowes will be seen at the King's Theatre to-day in Universal's "The Great Impersonation." In the exciting exposure of what goes on behind the scenes of war preparations, Lowes plays two roles. And in a monologue, his impersonation of the two. Best known for his portrayal of fast-talking, wise-cracking scoundrels, he is neither in this dramatization novel, the E. Phillips Oppenheim novel, Raucous, international adventures, willing to take any man's life for love of money or for love of a woman. He is first seen hiding in German East Africa, while his employer, an unscrupulous munitions king, seeks to "fix" a munitions charge. Lowes is also Richard Dominick, an alcoholic Englishman who drifts downward from power to worthlessness. What happens when the two, who were once college chums, meet in a surprising situation, one of the most surprising in motion pictures ever conceived. Valerie Hobson and Vera Engels play the women in the lives of these counterparts. The note of the series of horror in the ending, is present as it should be in a mystery. Back of the English castle, which is the setting for much of the action, lies the Black Bog, a menacing marsh from which come strange, scarcely human sounds. The final solution of this puzzle involves explanation of the major plot threads which make the film one guaranteed to blot out anyone's worst memories.

"Big Broadcast"
"The Big Broadcast," Paramount's all-star radio comedy, showing to-day at the Star Theatre, for one day only, will keep the audience in a constant state of hilarity from its rhythmic opening to the grand finale which more than justifies the title. In that finale, which, according to the story, is a giant programme arranged by Stuart Erwin to put Station Wium on the radio map, you hear Bing Crosby, Kate Smith, the Boswell Sisters, Burns and Allen, the Mills Brothers, Cab Calloway and his orchestra, Arthur Tracy (The Street Singer) and Vincent Lopez and his orchestra. That's something of an evening's or afternoon's entertainment in itself, but, in addition, long before the finale comes around, you've heard these same stars in other numbers. Finely directed, and finely cast—from both the dramatic and radio standpoints—the film easily tops the average or even the unusual screen fare.

"Colleen"
"Colleen," Warner Bros. latest musical film, is coming to the Queen's Theatre shortly, with an all-star cast including Dick Powell, Ruth Keeler, Jack Oakie, Joan Blondell, Hugh Herbert, Louise Fazenda and a score of other principals as well as a couple of hundred chorus beauties and dancing youths. Robert Lord has provided a real plot for this musical comedy, which is said to be packed with delightful and some dramatic moments. As a spectacle, the picture presents two unique and unusual specialty numbers staged by Robby Connolly, famous dance director, in which scores of beautiful girls participate. One is staged aboard an ocean liner with everyone from the captain to the crew as well as the passengers doing a dance rhythm. The other takes place in a modiste shop in which a veritable style show is featured. Three original catchy songs were written for the production by the famous composers Harry Warren and Al Dubin. Miss Keeler goes through her famous tap steps, some alone, and also with Paul Draper the Broadway dancing wizard, who was taken to Hollywood especially for this production. Others in the cast include Mario Wilson, Luis Alberni, Robert Cavanaugh, Bertie Churchill, J. M. Kerrigan, Spencer Charters, Addison Richards, Mary Treen and Charles Coleman.

NEW YORK STOCK EXCHANGE

MARKET UPWARD YESTERDAY

New York, May 26.
Swan, Culbertson & Fritz Wall Street Journal comment on 25/5 market: "The market to-day was upward by as much as 5 points and many issues reached high levels at the close of the session. The market was inspired by the strength of railroad stocks. Though dull during the first 4½ hours, traders bought heavily and shared. Buying was then spread to all sections. Railroad, steel, utility, communication and mercantile securities advanced smartly, only metal stocks were slow to respond to the bullishness. The rice, however, was entirely technical. In the bonds market, Corporation issues were higher, but Government bonds were lower. Stocks on the Curb Exchange were higher."

FOREST FIRES

NEW JERSEY TOWNS IN DANGER

Tuckerton, (New Jersey), May 26.
Over 2,000 men, with most of the fire fighting equipment of three counties, are battling with a forest fire on a ten mile front, which has so far resulted in five deaths, and the destruction of 15,000 acres of timber.

At the present time another two men are missing and eight are in hospital critically injured.

Six fires are burning in the five southern counties of New Jersey, but attention is concentrated on the great blaze between Tuckerton and Chatsworth, which has been raging since Saturday, and in which the damage is estimated at over $200,000. A strong wind is driving the flames to the south-east, with a ferocity which defies control.

Smoke is overhanging an area of a hundred square miles, and flames are leaping hundreds of feet into the air, being discernible for miles around. State Fire Warden Leonard Coyle, flying over the burning area in a plane, is directing the fire fighting by wireless.

The authorities believe that they have averted the danger to nine towns and villages which were at one time in great peril of being obliterated by no less than 26 small and large outbreaks which were threatening them.

Five hundred men were employed to pump water through a mile and a half of pipeline all night long to save the village of Waretown.

Chubby And Contented!

Babies who are kept in good health by the occasional use of Baby's Own Tablets always look well and feel well. They gain weight regularly, have no trouble with their teething, sleep soundly, enjoy food and profit fully by it.

This is no mere empty statement, but is verified by ample evidence from family physicians, from gratified parents, and from others who are well qualified to know, such for example, as Mrs. S. Bidgood, of Campbellford, Ontario.

"Being a nurse I have the handling of a good many babies," writes Mrs. Bidgood, "and I can honestly recommend Baby's Own Tablets to mothers everywhere. Whenever I am called in to a sick, fretful, crying baby, I always give Baby's Own Tablets before trying any other remedy. I find them very soothing for feverish, teething little ones, and even the most delicate child can take them."

Baby's Own Tablets are the prescription of a physician child-specialist, and are unsurpassed as a corrective of infantile indigestion, constipation, colic, "wind." They also check diarrhoea, relieve colds, and expel worms. Of all chemists, Baby's Own Tablets.

THE STORY OF THE STEAMSHIP

Britain's mammoth luxury liner, the Queen Mary, sails on her maiden voyage to-day, thus opening another chapter in the epic story of the Atlantic steamship service. Contemplation of this event recalls that the story of the steamship is one to thrill the heart of every lover of adventure, progress and romance. And it is largely a British story. It began in 1802, when the wooden vessel, the Charlotte Dundas, the first successful steamship, attained a speed of 3 1/4 miles an hour on the Forth and Clyde Canal. Thirteen years later, the Thames had its first steam packet. The old sailing-ship captains and the crusty old admirals were aghast. They saw what they had regarded as the fantastic nightmares of a set of impractical visionaries materialising before their eyes. And they bitterly resented it. Worse was to come! These impractical fanatics contemplated sending a steam-driven vessel across the Atlantic—which was obviously absurd, said the orthodox experts, for no ship capable of carrying enough coal for the journey would ever be built. In 1833, the fanatics again startled the orthodox, for the Royal William, a paddle boat of 830 tons, relying entirely on its steam engines, crossed the Atlantic to Canada in nineteen days. Then began the struggle for ever-increasing size. The first great ship was the Britannia, built on the Clyde in 1840 for Samuel Cunard, a Nova Scotia merchant. It was of about 1,150 tons and 235 feet long. British shipbuilders then made another revolutionary change; they began to build ships of iron and steel and to dream of still larger vessels. In 1860, the first "monster" ship, the Great Eastern, of about 18,915 tons and over 600 feet in length, made her maiden voyage. But she was before her time. She was built broadside on—the only way there was room to build her—on the Thames, and when she was finished it took three months, with the aid of specially built, powerful machinery to launch her. She was not a success from a commercial point of view, but it was more than thirty years before a bigger ship was built. The Great Eastern had one other great claim to fame: she laid the first cable across the Atlantic. Later, other nations began to compete for the Atlantic trade, and each of them attempted to build the largest vessel and capture what came to be called the Blue Riband of the Atlantic. Great Britain, the United States of America, France, Italy and Germany built some magnificent craft, until the French 80,000-ton Normandie started her career by beating all her competitors. Now comes another supreme British effort to capture all the laurels of the sea for size, speed, comfort, reliability and luxury. Pride of British shipbuilding achievement, the Queen Mary now sets out on her first voyage, carrying with her the hopes and wishes of Britons everywhere that she may win back for the premier maritime nation of the world the Blue Riband of the Atlantic. As a Home writer has remarked, the maiden voyage of this giant vessel should serve the whole world as a sign that "ancient founts of inspiration" are not lost to Britain, and that nothing is further from her thought than resignation of her ocean primacy.

RECORD BREAKING UPON THE ATLANTIC:

WHEN GREYHOUNDS RACE PAST
THE BISHOP ROCK LIGHTHOUSE

By Captain J. G. BISSET, Commander Of The Ascania

TRANS-ATLANTIC records, like pie-crusts and some promises, are made to be broken. While giving full marks to the great French liner Normandie for her marvellous first voyage performance, we cherish the hope that our own Queen Mary will to-day wrest the mythical blue ribbon from her.

To those who are unfamiliar with Transatlantic crossings a few words of explanation may be of interest. The course for the ocean passage lies between Bishop Rock Lighthouse and the Ambrose Channel Lighthouse, a distance of approximately 3,000 miles.

The word approximately is used because ships follow different official tracks at certain seasons of the year. For instance, during summer months, when icebergs drift down on the Labrador Current and infest the ordinary tracks, ships are diverted to a more southerly track giving a distance of 3,040 miles. During winter, when there are no loose bergs about, a more northerly track is used with a distance of 2,902 miles. Sometimes, owing to extraordinary ice conditions, a ship may be diverted from one track to another during the voyage.

THE iceberg region comprises a huge area in the vicinity of the Grand Banks of Newfoundland, and ships proceeding east or west first make for a position south of the Banks, known as the "corner," and then carry on to their destination. East-bound and west-bound tracks are laid roughly 60 miles apart in order to minimise risk of ships meeting in thick weather.

Ships bound west leave their Channel port and make for a position five miles south of Bishop Rock. This lighthouse stands on an isolated rock at the southwest extreme of the Scilly Islands, and shows a white double-flash light of 622,000 candle power at a height of 143ft. In clear weather this is visible from a liner's bridge at a distance of about 27 miles. There is also an explosive fog signal, and on another part of the Islands a radio beacon for guiding ships in fog. Bishop Rock is 196 miles from Southampton, 190 from Cherbourg, and 249 miles from Havre.

Passing "Bishops" at full speed, the exact time is noted when the rock is abreast (abreast). This is termed the "departure." Thereafter each day at noon the ship's position is plotted on the chart and the day's run calculated from the previous noon. This information is posted up for the use of passengers, who usually organise a complicated sort of auction sweepstake on the result.

To-night the new Cunard-White Star liner Queen Mary sets out on her maiden voyage across the Atlantic. Experts believe that she will have no difficulty in breaking the record set up last year by the French liner Normandie.

ence between the chief engineer's run and the actual run obtained by the navigators is termed "slip," and expressed in nautical miles per cent. "Slip" varies according to the weather. In light winds and smooth seas it may be as little as 3 per cent, but when the ship is plunging into a heavy head gale it may rise to 25 per cent. Navigators learn by experience how much to allow.

As the ship proceeds on her voyage the clock is altered each day to allow for the difference in time. New York time is five hours behind

London time—though New Yorkers might not all admit this. To make up for this difference on a ship of the speed of the Normandie the clock would be put back 14 1/2 hours each midnight going west, thus making up the five hours in four nights, and giving a 25 1/4-hour day.

Going east the clock is put forward, giving a 22 3/4-hour day. This tends to upset the sleeping hours of some people and especially of children. Allowance is naturally made for the five hours in the calculation of the average speed.

ALL miles referred to on board ship are nautical miles, distinct from a land mile. A statute or land mile is a purely arbitrary measure and was defined as 5,280ft by an Act of Parliament passed in the 25th year of the reign of "Good Queen Bess." It bears no relation to any scale in nature.

The nautical mile is 6,080ft, and is arrived at by an exact division of the meridional circumference of the earth. Owing to the globe being bulged and flattened, the nautical mile varies slightly in length, being 6,046ft at the equator and 6,100ft at the poles, so a mean of 6,080ft is adopted and this is correct in latitudes 48deg. north or south. As an easy reminder, seven nautical miles are equal to 8,93 statute miles.

The nautical mile, a unit of length, must not be confused with the knot, a unit of speed. To say that a ship is doing 30 knots, means that she is covering 30 nautical miles per hour. To use the expression "30 knots per hour" is incorrect and immediately brands the speaker as a very amateur navigator.

The Gulf Stream is a factor that enters into Transatlantic records for about a 1,000 miles of the passage before arrival at New York. This stream runs in an easterly direction at the variable rate of 1/2 to 1 1/2 knots. Going west the ship has to steam against it and is liable to have one or two days of poor runs. Going east, it helps her along.

Gambler on the day's run are keen students of the Gulf Stream, some of them almost conveying the impression that they have a controlling influence over its movements. But it is a fickle jade and often upsets their calculations, as does the demon fog.

WHEN, in due course, the ship passes Ambrose Channel Lighthouse, the exact time is noted and termed "arrival." The total time on passage is then divided into the total mileage, and we have the average speed in knots and tenths.

Ambrose Lighthouse is moored in the centre of New York Bay. It carries a powerful flashing light, also a siren, a radio beacon and a submarine bell for guiding ships in thick weather. The pilot boat cruises a couple of miles inside the lighthouse, and the ship, having stopped to embark a pilot, proceeds a distance of 14 miles up the channel and anchors at the Quarantine Grounds for examination by the Port Medical Officer and the Immigration Officials, and the mail is discharged into tenders.

She then proceeds another ten miles up the harbour to her dock, where she is nosed into berth by a fleet of tugs. The record-breaking voyage (if records are broken) is over.

Aston Villa Want to Sell £20,000 Men

Aston Villa, "Bank of England" football team to be relegated to Division II of the League, have placed players valued at £20,000 on their transfer list.

Last season Aston Villa paid about £43,000 for star footballers in an effort to stay in Division I.

Among players now "for sale" are:

- James McLaughlin, left half, bought for £2,500 from Manchester City in 1934.
- James Gibson, full back. Cost £2,500 (then record fee) in 1927.
- Daniel Blair, full back. Has captained the Villa.

All three are Scottish internationals.

CORRESPONDENCE

Concerning K.C.C. v. U. S. R. C. Tennis

The Sports Editor, Hongkong Telegraph.

Sir—Certain comments by "Veritas" on the U.S.R.C. versus K.C.C. tennis match in today's paper seem to call for a reply. Stress has been laid on the absence from the K.C.C. team of Miss Mackenzie and the limited display of Mrs. McCaw. It might have been better that the comment had been left out of your otherwise readable criticism. Admittedly, opinions do vary and everyone is entitled to their own but when aired through the columns of the press they sometimes convey more than a mere opinion. As an interested spectator of the match and having discussed the merits of the various players at considerable length after the match—both with players and other spectators with sound tennis knowledge—the general opinion appeared to be that Mrs. McCaw was well worth her inclusion in the team as third lady player and that on her display she should be kept in the team in place of Miss Mackenzie. This of course is a matter for the K.C.C. tennis selectors to decide but many do think Mrs. McCaw is worth trying again in the next match.

Thanking you for publishing this opinion.

Yours faithfully,

McAvoy May Have Right Hand Rebuilt

(By Henry Rose)

Jock McAvoy, British middle-weight champion, may have his right hand rebuilt. That would keep him out of the ring for six months.

I have seen the specialist's report based on an X-ray examination, of the injuries McAvoy's hands received in his contests with John Henry Lewis in America and with Jack Petersen in London.

The report says the metacarpal bones—between the wrist and the fingers—have been fractured. Traumatic arthritis, a form of rheumatism caused by injury, is also suspected.

McAvoy has been ordered complete rest for two or three weeks. There is a very slender chance that nature may effect a cure.

If there is no improvement at the end of two or three weeks, McAvoy's hand will be opened, tendons removed, and bones reset, and the skin

POINTS FOR CLUB DE RECREIO, K.C.C. AND I.R.C.

Senior Division league tennis for the current season opened yesterday with three matches in which results went according to form. K. C. C. only just scrambled home on their own courts against South China, but Indian Recreation Club and Club de Recreio gained comfortable wins at the expense of U. S. R. C. and H. K. C. C. respectively. The club "Derby" encounter between the Chinese Recreation Clubs was postponed. Special reports of the matches will be found on this page.

K.C.C. NEARLY CAUGHT NAPPING

GOOD IMPRESSION CREATED BY SOUTH CHINA A.A.

(By "Veritas")

If ever a team, apparently starting the match with a false sense of security, had to fight with their backs to the wall to save tennis league points, it was the Kowloon Cricket Club yesterday, when they met South China Athletic in the first "A" Division encounter of the season.

Finally, after K.C.C. supporters had been given some very disappointing moments, K.C.C. won by the old set, they took the points and South China the honours.

Possibly everybody, save the losing players themselves, was surprised at the opposition offered by South China. If their third string had been on anything like a par with the other couples the Chinese would have reversed the result.

There was nothing effervescent about their type of tennis, rather they relied on a solid, though active method of play which is ideal for these league matches of short single sets. Lobbing, never very much favoured by K.C.C. players, was cleverly exploited by the Chinese, while overhead and on the volley they were superior to all of the home team save the Fincher brothers. Only in ground strokes did the K.C.C. enjoy any advantage and while they could keep the opposition on the run with widely angled drives they were in the ascendancy.

THE "KEY" MAN

In F. N. Wong and C. P. Ip, South China boast a first couple who will hold their own against anybody in the Colony. Yesterday was the "key" man, his splendid smashing, dependable volleying and nice sense of tactics being primarily responsible for the winning of two sets. Wong, apt to bring the racket head through too early committed volleys makes but usually made amends with his fine length-lobbing.

K. F. Liu and H. K. Ho, second string, preferred a more sustained attack, but they were more successful when going on the volley and experienced difficulty in countering the hot drives of the Finchers and Bodiker. But they were tenacious and clearly knew most of the moves. They took sets from Bodiker and Clarke and Guest and Grose as well as holding the Fincher pair up to three-all.

W. H. Ho and K. H. Wong lost all three sets, but how near they went to beating Guest and Grose only those two players really knew. At one time the K.C.C. couple were 2-4 in arrears, but a sudden return to top form by Grose enabled them to recover and win the next four games. Even then the visitors saved three set points on Guest's service.

Though they were very keen on volleying, neither Wong nor Ho appeared to have the required range of strokes to make their net excursions successful. Inexperience of match play, however, appeared to be their chief disadvantage. This promises to be rectified during the next few months.

NOT AT THEIR BEST

I trust I shall not be accused of hyper-criticism when I say that K.C.C. were not at their best. As a combination only Teddy and Ernie Fincher approached anything like true form. Once again Bodiker played a nice game as an individual, but he and Clark will need lots of practice in order to settle down into a workmanlike and efficient pair.

Clarke, playing in his first senior division match, appeared to be nervous of himself, and consequently did not play as well as he can. Nevertheless a little freer use of the foot in receiving service and a tighter grip on the racket when volleying would possibly make an important contribution towards improvement and effectiveness.

Grose, who has plenty of style and most of the strokes, was usually enough to strike on off day. He was not "seeing" the balls properly for the better part of the match, a fact amply demonstrated by his continual loss of service. Guest too was inclined to be variable and completely lost his touch in the last set after he and Bodiker had taken a 4-1 lead.

General impression was that K.C.C. require some team practice, but as the season has now started, doubtless this will be confined to their league matches.

Indians Win Without Rumjahn

VERY CREDITABLE DISPLAY

When it was known that Sirdar Rumjahn was indisposed, I.R.C. prospects of beating the U.S.R.C. at King's Park yesterday suffered a slump. But the Indians came up trumps and despite the handicap managed to beat the United Services by 6½ sets to 2½.

Apart from Goldman and Sullivan the U.S.R.C. put up a creditable display against the forceful tactics of the visitors. The Sookunpoo club had good reason to feel satisfied with the display of M. O. Hosen and F. D. Pereira who won two of their three sets, but chief honours went to H. D. Rumjahn and A. H. Madar who combined in great style to win one set to love, another to one and to draw six-all with Goldman and Sullivan.

Rather better form was expected from the U.S.R.C. But for Goldman and Sullivan they would have suffered a debacle. Neither of the other two pairs appeared to be up to senior division standard, though lack of systematic practice may account for this.

All the same, in view of S. A. Rumjahn's absence, the result was a distinct triumph for the I.R.C., who already give the impression of being a much more powerful team than during the last three or four years.

A. V. REMEDIOS

Plays Brilliantly For Recreio

GOSANO'S SERVICE

Club de Recreio's strength was not fully tested by the H.K.C.C. yesterday when they met at King's Park in an "A" Division match, and once the home team had obtained a winning lead they eased up considerably.

All the same it was possible to conclude that they will be even more formidable this year than last. A. V. Remedios continues to make steady progress and in this match he was the cleverest and most able player on the court. Remedios, who has made a deep study of court-craft utilised his knowledge to the best effect, continually scoring outright with delicate placements after inveigling his opponents out of position.

R. J. Goncalves was an adequate partner, effecting smart interceptions. Few will beat this pair in the league. A. V. Gosano, at varying intervals, brilliant, poor and indifferent, made full use of his powerful and accurate service and continually scored aces. Barreto played at a somewhat more leisurely tempo.

Barros and F. J. Remedios have been in better form, and Recreio will hope for some improvement here for their more important engagements.

MISS YORKE WINS

French Mixed Doubles Championship

Autumn, May 26.
Miss Billie Yorke (Britain) playing with Marcel Bernard of France, yesterday won the final of the French mixed doubles tennis championship, when they beat Martin Legay and Mme. Renoulin of France 7-5, 6-8, 6-3.

A. H. Madar, who played extremely well for I.R.C. against U.S.R.C. in the tennis league yesterday.

THE BEST AMATEUR GOLF FINAL

Play to Make a Professional Envious

Harry G. Bentley, the 29-year-old international golfer, added to his long list of triumphs by winning the English Amateur Championship at the Royal Cinque Ports course, beating J. D. A. Langley, the 18-year Stowe schoolboy, after the best final in the 12 years' history of the competition.

Some idea of the superlative play may be judged from the fact that when George Dunderrath won the Open championship on this course in 1921 only two professionals, Duncan and Len Holland, beat 72 in four rounds. Yet Bentley returned a 72 for the first 18 holes, with Langley only two strokes more. Amazing is the only word for such a performance in windy conditions, sufficiently trying to test the best of players.

Although Bentley deservedly won, chief honours went to Langley, the youngest player ever to have taken part in a major championship.

After a shaky start, he showed such determination and ability that until the later stages it was touch and go whether he would snatch a thrilling victory. There has been no more gallant loser.

It is difficult to put into words the superb assurance and self-control of this remarkable youth. He putted perfectly and throughout the day made only two mistakes, against which he held many ticklish putts of from two to eight yards. Bentley, too, putted beautifully. In fact, the work on the greens would have put to shame many of our professionals.

A CRICKETER, TOO
Langley has played golf since he was 2½ years of age. He has had plenty of opportunities for practice both at home, chipping and putting in the garden, and at Stowe, one of the few public schools with a nine-hole course of its own. It is not his only game. When he returns to school to-morrow he will resume his duties as cricket captain and will continue to play both games when at Cambridge.

Though both the finalists are disciples of Henry Cotton, having been coached by him during the winter, the game provided a contrast in styles. The tall, slender Langley, bracing his left leg and making the greatest use of his height, employed a powerful, high follow-through, whereas Bentley, of average build, crouched well over the ball and punched it with a full, rhythmic swing.

FIRST ROUND EVEN
When Langley started by taking five and six for the first two par four holes, losing both, the majority of the gallery thought the match as good as over. The boy, however, never turned a hair. He won the short 4th with a two and the 234 6th with a three. But as Bentley reached the turn in the wonderful score of 34, Langley was two down at this stage.

On the homeward half he drew level, but lost the 17th to a fine three. Bentley hooked his second to the 18th hole, but Langley placed an iron shot at the foot of the raised green, neatly chipped to within a yard of the pin and squared the match.

In the second round Langley matched shot for shot. Bentley struck the first blow at the 6th, where the boy three-putted. At the 9th Bentley only half hit a pitch shot; Langley ran up four yards from the flag and holed the putt to become two up.

Although Langley fought with wonderful pluck, the accuracy of Bentley, especially around the greens, wore him down. He lost two of the next four holes and the match.

ENGLAND MUST LOOK TO HER YOUNG PLAYERS FOR THE TESTS

A. P. F. CHAPMAN HAS A FEW NAMES TO SUGGEST

A. P. F. Chapman, wants youth to be given chance for the next cricket tests.

"We need to find two really first-class bowlers in the coming cricket season if we are to have any hope of winning the next series of Test matches in Australia."

That remark was made in my presence the other day. My own opinion is that if we can unearth one we shall be fortunate.

Frankly, I cannot see where he is coming from. Every county, with its nurseries, its coaching schemes, and its constant, unremitting search in the highways and byways, is practically going through the country with a fine comb. No one yet seems to have made a discovery.

We appear to be in one of those cycles when English cricket is in the doldrums—a period similar to 1921-1924.

In 1926 Harold Larwood came into his own, and, with the help of Wilfrid Rhodes—brought back to Test warfare at the age of 40—we won that memorable match (and, with it the Ashes) at the Oval.

UNDER A CLOUD

We had almost everything our own way in Australia in 1928-29.

We lost the rubber by two games to one to Australia here in 1930 and regained it under D. R. Jardine (with Larwood the mainstay of our attack) in Australia in 1932-33.

Then, beginning with the summer of 1934, our cricket came under a cloud, and, at the moment, I cannot see that cloud lifting.

Unless the team that leaves England next September includes in its number a new Larwood or a rejuvenated Verity, it will have all the difficulties of the team that that great cricketer the late Johnny Douglas captained in Australia 15 years ago, and its fate will probably be the same—all five matches won by Australia.

The first difficult task which faces the England selectors is that of deciding on the right captain.

There is no one really-made for the job, and, so far as I can see, the choice rests between G. O. Allen of Middlesex and A. B. Sellers of Yorkshire.

KEEN AND DEPENDABLE

The factor which may weigh the scales in favour of Allen is that he has had experience of cricket in Australia. He bowled very well, with Larwood, in Jardine's team, in 1932-33; he is tremendously keen, is a brilliant field, a dependable batsman (especially in a light corner, and one of the best fast bowlers we have.

That last-mentioned point might be more in his favour if he were a member of the side and not its leader. I am not enamoured of the idea of a speed bowler—or for that matter any type of front-line bowler—leading an England team in Australia.

But although Allen's experience of captaincy is limited—and he is not even the captain of his county team—he possesses qualifications which the selectors may feel they cannot overlook. He has, too, made great personal sacrifices to get himself fit.

Sellers, on the other hand, has done wonderful work with the Yorkshire team. His abilities as a captain are unquestioned; he is a very good batsman and a brilliant field.

But unless it were decided that he went as captain I cannot see him getting even a place in the team. Here are the men whom I think we can regard as certain for Australia.

Hammond (Gloucestershire); R. E. S. Wyatt (Warwickshire); Sutcliffe (Yorkshire); G. O. Allen (Middlesex); Nichols (Essex); R. W. V. Robins (Middlesex); Leyland (Yorkshire); Verity (Yorkshire); Ames (Kent); Duckworth (Lancashire).

Sutcliffe I regard as indispensable in a series of Test matches because when England played South Africa here last summer I gave my reasons why he should be omitted from the side.

One cannot look elsewhere for the two wicket-keepers, unless the great improvement of Wood (Yorkshire) is taken into account.

It is in filling the other six places in the touring party of sixteen that the possibilities of making the greatest mistakes arise.

WATCH THESE MEN

Here are players whose form during the coming English season should be watched with great care:

E. R. T. Holmes (Surrey); R. H. Moore (Hampshire); Washbrook (Lancashire); Pollard (Lancashire); Doolery (Warwickshire); Todd (Kent); Fagg (Kent); Hardstaff (Nottinghamshire); Willard (Somerset); Copson (Derbyshire); Hutton (Yorkshire); Mitchell (Yorkshire); Smith (Derbyshire).

The list could be extended by bringing in a couple of Sussex men, and there is, of course, Bowes, the Yorkshire fast bowler. But we have two such bowlers already in Allen and Nichols, and as we know the strength of Bowes I would stress the claims for a trial of Copson and let the final decision rest on this season's form.

The All-India team is here, and even at the slight risk of our defeat in the three Test matches to be played I would put into the field an

Lawn Bowls Championship Matches

SEVERAL PLAYED YESTERDAY

A full programme of matches were decided yesterday afternoon in the Pairs Championship of the Hongkong Lawn Bowls Association.

Some of the games were not in complete accord with expectations, but there were no sensational results.

A. W. Grimmit, a former champion, in partnership with C. Strange had no difficulty in winning on the Kowloon Bowling Green against T. B. Parks and M. Ferguson. The Civil Service pair won by 30-11. They scored two fours during the match and never at any time looked like being beaten.

On the Club de Recreio Green N. J. Bebbington and A. Hyde Lay beat S. J. Houghton and T. Ferguson by 28-10. The losers took the lead with a four on the first head and then a single, but when the winners chalked up a five on the fourth they went to the front to stay there throughout the match. On the 13th head Bebbington and Hyde Lay were leading 19-8. A five to the losers on the 18th head reduced the deficit, but the winners held the lead by 25-15.

L. Glendinning and J. Shepherd had a low scoring match against J. D. Thomson and G. E. F. Thompson, winning by 16-9, the highest score on any head was a two, the winners securing three and the losers one.

M. Souza and W. Field gained a narrow win on the Police Green yesterday against J. Watson and J. Fraser.

The score was 14-13 and the match was won on the last wood when Field got inside the lying shot, put up by Fraser on the previous roll.

Darkness threatened to postpone the decision in the game on the Civil Service Club green where V. C. Labrum and J. M. Jack lost to S. O. Bux and A. R. Minu by 12 shots to 10.

On the Indian Recreation Club rink, P. E. Knight and J. Hollidge encountered little opposition from L. H. Collyer and M. Purvis, winning by 22 shots to 12.

The winners showed consistent form, scoring a five on one head and two threes, while the losers scored two on four heads.

At the Taikeo Club, W. Greig and W. Muir defeated A. F. Paul and W. MacFarlane by 23 shots to 18.

Muir was the best player on view, laying some difficult shots. The winners scored a five on the 10th head and another on the 16th head.

The losers were leading by 13-11 on the 14th head, but were unable to score for the next five heads, during which their opponents score twelve shots to take a substantial lead.

The game between H. E. Strange and R. Wood against M. Y. Adal and A. R. Dallah at the Electric Company green was left unfinished, the scores being 17-all on the 19th head.

On the Kowloon Dock R.C. green, L. A. Gutierrez and A. A. de Remedios defeated W. Gill and F. Goodman by 20 shots to 14.

Summer CAN'T LAST for Ever

... even in Kashmir, Garden of India. But this romantic story tells of the Summer of Love, which can last for ever!

—By MARGARET FERGUSON

"AND so I've brought the cheque along with me, Miss Petrie, as I expect you would like to receive the money straight away. All this has been most unfortunate for you and a very sad ending to your trip to India. Would you please sign just here?" Mechanically Phillida Petrie took the fountain pen and signed her name neatly at the foot of the crumpled sheet of paper that had been spread out before her.

The sticky heat of the room, the loud whirring of the fans, the queer-ness of everything made her head spin and ache.

Calcutta in May—Mrs. Larcombe, who had brought her out here as secretary-companion, dead—a cheque for two hundred and fifty pounds, a legacy left her in Mrs. Larcombe's will, being pushed across the table to her—the end of her job, and her plan—everything was chaos and confusion.

"Thank you very much, that is all quite clear now. I suppose that you will be leaving Calcutta very soon? Would you like me to book a passage for you home? I daresay I could arrange one more quickly and comfortably for you than the usual agents."

Mr. Potter, the local lawyer who had taken charge of Mrs. Larcombe's affairs, was only too ready to help—as everyone was in India, and it seemed to him that this girl needed helping and looking after.

There was a sort of dazed, faraway look on her delicately-cut face, and she certainly was a stranger to India and its ways. Probably the shock of Mrs. Larcombe's sudden death from heat stroke and the collapse of all her plans had stunned her for the time being. It was lucky that she had been left this small legacy to make up to her for the upset and trouble of the whole affair.

"I tell you what," he said kindly. "Come round and dine with us to-night and talk things over with my wife. You must be feeling in rather a confusion just now and anxious to rest. At half-past eight—" "Thank you," Phillida said slowly, "it's very kind of you."

Mr. Potter bustled briskly out—no amount of damp heat seemed to lessen his briskness—and she was left alone in the big, cool hotel bedroom.

Slipping off her silk frock, she put on a thin kimono and lay down on the bed under the huge swinging fan that stirred up a moist, tepid air.

Already the heat had drained the colour out of Phillida's face, leaving it waxen pale, with blue veins showing at the temples. The mass of her copper-beech coloured hair that lay heavy for it and the white lids above her deep grey-green eyes looked tired and weighed with fatigue.

She was tired, dreadfully tired. Everything in these last two or three months had been such a flurry.

First losing her secretarial job with the book publishers that she had worked for five years. They had changed hands and the new owners had made a clean sweep of most of the old staff. Then those long, blank weeks of being out of a job. Then the meeting with Mrs. Larcombe, an authoress who was collecting materials for a travel book—and looking for a secretary to take out East with her. Then the bustle of leaving England and the voyage and the long land journey across India. And then Calcutta steaming under dank white skies, and Mrs. Larcombe's collapse one night from heat stroke, that ended fatally in a heart attack.

And now here she was jobless again and marooned in India—but the richer by two hundred and fifty pounds.

Slowly she got off the bed, picked up the cheque that was written out in Mr. Potter's neat handwriting, and went back to the bed, holding it in her hand that trembled a tiny bit.

Two hundred and fifty pounds—more than she had ever dreamt of holding in her hand all at once.

What was she going to do with it? She knew what she would be expected to do with it by the sensible, level-headed people; put it by for a rainy day, keep it as a nest egg, invest it and get four or five pounds a year income from it...but she didn't want to do that. It seemed such a waste of it all, waste of the possibilities that lay hidden in the crisp thinness of that cheque. This trip to India had been such a thrill, coming just when she was aching for adventure, longing for a change, excitement...something different. And now it was over and Mr. Potter wanted to book her passage home to England by the next mail boat...

Well—was it all over?

Phillida suddenly sat bolt upright on the bed, the dressing-gown sliding down off her narrow white shoulders, her thick hair stirring in the breeze from the fan, her eyes turning a shade brighter green as they always did when she was suddenly thrilled about something. Because she knew that she had no intention of putting that cheque into any bank as a nest egg, or of investing it.

She knew exactly what she was going to do with it.

Mr. Potter was rather like her husband, plump, pink and kind-hearted. After dinner she and Phillida went and sat outside on the moonlit verandah to have a chat about things, as Mr. Potter had arranged, and Mrs. Potter was quite ready to chat, offer condolences and good advice and make useful suggestions.

"Quite apart from the shock of her death, this must have been a sad disappointment for you," she said. "I mean—you must have been looking forward to seeing India. Wasn't Mrs. Larcombe thinking of going up to Kashmir for the summer?"

"Yes," Phillida said, "she was."

"Of course it was madness for a woman of her age to travel about India at this time of year. Ah, well!" Mrs. Potter heaved a gentle sigh.

"The point is—what are your plans going to be? Herbert tells me he can get you a passage on the P. & O. boat sailing next Friday."

HAPPENINGS AS SEEN BY THE CAMERA'S EYE

NEW RULER OF MILLIONS: H. M. S. KENT IN SHANGHAI

Lord Linlithgow, Viceroy and Governor-General of India, and Lady Linlithgow are shown here as they left their home in Chester Place, London, on their way to Delhi, where Lord Linlithgow has already taken up his appointment. He succeeds Lord Willingdon as Viceroy of India. Lord Linlithgow, who was born in 1857, served in the Great War, being mentioned in despatches. In 1922-24 he was Civil Lord of the Admiralty. He has had considerable experience in Indian affairs, acting as Chairman of the Royal Commission on Indian agriculture (1926-28), and Chairman of the joint select council on Indian Constitutional Reform (1933).

H. M. S. Kent, flagship of Admiral Sir Charles Little, reached Shanghai last week and anchored at the British Naval Buoy off the Bund. Shortly after her arrival an official party headed by Sir John Brennan, H. M. Consul-General, and including Brigadier F. S. Thackeray, commanding British Troops, Shanghai Area, left for the flagship by launch. Lower photo shows the British cruiser as she berthed. Upper photo shows the British naval launch leaving the Customs Jetty with the official party to call upon Admiral Little.

TRAGIC CAR DIVE AT YANGTZEPOO

Pictures taken at the scene of a recent Shanghai car tragedy, in which eight persons lost their lives. Two of the victims were still in the car when hoisted from the water, as shown in the top photograph. Lower picture shows divers going down to attach slings to the car and to search for further victims.

RUSSIA'S DEMAND FOR FAR EAST FLEET

London, May 26.

British naval authorities con-

Detroit Tigers, last year's champions, out-slugged the Chicago White Sox at Chicago to-day, to the tune of twelve to nine. The Tigers scored on sixteen hits against fourteen of the opposition's. Chicago had two errors and Detroit one.

The League tail-enders, St. Louis Browns, went wild when they met the Cleveland Indians. Bottomley smacked a homer and they scored eight runs on eleven hits, while the Indians were scoring five on five hits. The Indians had two errors.

Boston gained on the League leaders, the New York Yankees, in a tight game at the Yankee Stadium. Crosscut hit a homer for the Yanks and three others pelted home on the nine hits inside the park. Boston turned nine hits, including Fox's homer, into five runs and won by a score of five to three.

TABLES TURNED
In the second game of their double-header, Chicago beat Detroit nine to two, on fifteen hits to seven. There were no errors.

The Washington Senators beat Philadelphia eight to two, scoring on thirteen hits to eight errors, by the Phillies.

The New York Giants beat the Brooklyn Dodgers to gain a few points in their average, but they did not lessen the distance between them and the League leaders, St. Louis Cardinals, who continued to advance at the expense of Pittsburgh.

The Giants won seven to three, scoring fourteen hits to the Pirates' seven, but falling into three errors. Leiber homered. Vaughn's homer for the Pirates did not help them against St. Louis, when the score was six to two. St. Louis hit nine times and the Pirates seven. There were no errors.

Philadelphia swamped Boston, seven to two, getting seventeen hits against eleven, two of them homers, by Morris and J. Moore.

Chicago Cubs, last year's League winners, thumped the Reds ten to four. Cuyler hit a homer for Cincinnati, but fifteen batters got to first for the Cubs. The Reds had two errors.—Reuter.

CONVENT SCHOOL CORNERSTONE

Laid by H. E. THE GOVERNOR

His Excellency the Governor, Sir Andrew Caldecott, performed the ceremony of laying the cornerstones of the new Maryknoll Convent School, at the junction of Waterloo Road and Boundary Street, Kowloon Tong, yesterday afternoon, in the presence of a large gathering.

His Excellency, who was accompanied by Mr. H. J. Crutwell, Private Secretary, was met on arrival by Rev. Father G. T. Byrne, S.J., and Sister Paul, Regional Prioress.

Girl Guides of the Holy Spirit School and the Maryknoll Convent School provided a guard of honour and also lined the way up the stairs to the scene of the ceremony.

The building was gallily bedecked with flags and bunting. Music was provided by Professor F. Gonsalves and his band.

The cornerstone, which was carried out in marble by Messrs. C. E. Warren and Co., Ltd., bore the following inscription: "To the Greater Glory of God through the Maryknoll Ideal. This stone was laid by Sir Andrew Caldecott, C.M.G., C.B.E., Governor of Hongkong, May 26, 1936."

Father Byrne's Speech

Prior to calling on His Excellency to lay the cornerstones, Rev. Father Byrne, addressing the gathering said: "Excellent! Excellent! Father Rignati, Ladies and Gentlemen—In the opening words of welcome, I am happily saved from any Ulrich Heep apology for trespassing on your time as though it flowed like water. We know, not merely from personal experience, but from the deepest needs of the Colony are first in your mind and unstinted in your attention. Education is among the deepest, so deep that it is a problem which demands the attention of one's Majesty's inspectors. Each year we consider it insoluble. Fortunately bright rays of sunshine pierce the mists. The functions which Your Excellency kindly performs to-day is one of them. We gratefully appreciate your kindness in attending to-day."

Another school? Have we not got enough of them? The last census revealed 110,000 children. How many to be housed from Kennedy Town to Kowloon City could reveal belongs to Alice's Wonderland! Of these, last year we find 75,480 "under instruction" leaving 34,520 as part of the numerical problem. The biggest part of the problem is suitable education. To the Maryknoll Sisters apply themselves wholeheartedly and effectively.

The Maryknoll School started in 1925 with 12 Kindergarten children. Each year a class was added until even the annexation of an unused garage and the adjoining workshop was inadequate. Migrations from Austin Road to King's Terrace to Kimberley Road became necessary until the present site was reached.

From 1925 to 1936 enrollment increased from 12 to 360. There are many knocking at the door.

As an organized Sisterhood in the Catholic Church the Maryknoll Sisters are but of yesterday, 1920. It is no small proof of the appeal of their work and of their ideals that in these sixteen years they have grown from 25 to 500. From Maryknoll, their home in Ossining, so called because dedicated to the Virgin Mother of God, they have spread to Hawaii, China, Korea, Manila, Japan. A people who are keenly alive to education excellence recently expressed their esteem of Maryknoll work. Two of the Sisters were received with every mark of honour by the highest officials in Japan; and the Press throughout the country gave signal prominence to their visit.

Spirit of Love

Congregations in the Catholic Church may be compared to regiments in an army. All work for a central government, but each has its own spirit, its own traditions, and its own special training. The works to which the Sisters are devoted by their rule are: Schools, hospitals, care of orphans, creches, hostels, dispensaries, the blind and the maimed, the aged, the lepers. To these they bind themselves not for some decades but for life. Their riches—evangelical poverty; their inspiration—purity of outlook; their beacon light—ready obedience to the will of God. Just think quietly over the list of works the maimed, the aged, the lepers—you will see that some quickening force is needed to make of them works of lifelong, unremunerated devotion.

The quickening force is prayer: "to live to live in Christ." The spirit of love fanned by the breath of prayer, such was the lesson, in season and out of season, impressed on them by their saintly Founder, Bishop James Anthony Walsh, recently deceased: such was his deathbed legacy.

The supernatural must rest in nature and crown it. So we find it laid down in their Constitutions that "the most arduous to have their establishments attain the highest standards required by Governments or set by other Institutes, public or private. Therefore they shall have the opportunities of acquiring the diplomas and academic degrees required in secular institutions."

But the basic principle of the Maryknoll teaching is religious and moral training; the endeavour to form Christians with strong convictions and solid virtues, and citizens equipped with such knowledge and accomplishments as befit their circumstances or the interests of their country or family.

Napoleon is supposed to have said that one of the greatest national wants was good mothers. We may enlarge the idea and say that to-day one of the greatest international wants is good mothers! "Tied to the mother's apron strings" is a reproach among growing boys; on the whole there is not much manifestation of it. We have never heard the remark "I wish to be a mother's pupil" yet we fancy that many a grown boy, in the fifties, is encumbered by those strings; race prejudices, social prejudices, religious prejudices—all the prejudices more requisite than sugar for afternoon tea. You won't get them at the tea this evening. A grand Atlantic breeze blows them away from the Maryknoll pupils. We have every ground for hoping that the privileged pupils of this school will grow into mothers whose outlook will be bounded by the horizon of sympathy because their homes will have been built on love.

"Parents' Day"

As far as I know the Maryknoll Sisters are the first educators to have introduced into Hongkong "Parents' Day." This is a day when parents are invited to tour the classrooms, not empty of life, but as they are on ordinary Monday mornings. They see the children at work, hear them questioned, may question them. It is a grand object lesson. It establishes a contact of so gently lacking, between home and school; a contact far different than that of the little note suggesting that as Marjorie's aunt is expected the day after tomorrow, Marjorie had better have a holiday for the expectation.

The Maryknoll School is not at present a Grant-in-Aid School. That it deserves to be so was the unanimous opinion of the Education Board. Unfortunately the Colony's heart—the Colony have one—is a victim to economic palpitation. Let us hope that the depressing malady may soon pass; that the Colony's purse become adequate for the Colony's needs, educational facilities being in the foreground.

Once again, on behalf of the Maryknoll Sisters, I thank His Excellency for his encouragement this evening. I thank all the friends and benefactors for their help and their presence. I thank the architects, Messrs. Little, Adams and Wood, succeeded by Messrs. Palmer and Turner, and the contractors, Messrs. Mel On for the perfection of their work.

And, though nobody has asked me to do it, I feel that I may thank the Maryknoll Sisters for adding a significant and precious stone to the edifice, rapidly rising, of Greater Kowloon. (Applause.)

Sir Andrew Replies

Rising to reply, His Excellency said that he was very grateful to his doctors for enabling him to be present at the ceremony, but their permission was conditional on his not making a speech. After hearing the extraordinary kind words of welcome which had fallen from Father Byrne, said Sir Andrew, he felt he must say a few words in appreciation. He hoped that what Father Byrne had said about the Colony's purse becoming adequate was a prophecy.

"I want to say this," His Excellency concluded. "I cannot say all that is in my heart to-day, but I do want to thank the Maryknoll Sisters for their splendid enterprise and I do wish the school every success in the future." (Applause.)

His Excellency then declared the cornerstone well and truly laid, using a mallet and trowel, after which the stone was blessed by Father Rignati.

His Excellency shook hands with the officials and departed.

Tea was served, during which the band played a number of selections.

IMPERIAL PARLEYS PLANNED

DOMINION LEADERS CONGREGATING

MEETING SOON IN LONDON

London, May 27.
The Times to-day foresees a miniature Imperial Conference in London, within the next few weeks, which it believes to be of particular value in the present juncture when the international situation necessitates Britain and the Dominions keeping in line.

Dr. Earl Page, Vice-Premier of Australia and Minister of Commerce, is at present in London. Mr. O. Pirow, Minister of Defence of South Africa, is at present en route here. The Canadian Prime Minister, Mr. W. L. Mackenzie King, is coming to London next month. Mr. Walter Nash, Minister of Finance and Customs, is coming from New Zealand as soon as possible.

All are on their way to a conference to deal mainly with commercial matters, except Mr. Pirow, who will discuss problems in connection with communication and defence in South Africa.

The Times is certain the talks will cover the whole range of subjects, from foreign policy to defence communication and international trade.—Reuter.

JAPAN'S ACTION OFFENDS

SEEKS DOMINATION OF ALL ASIA

SENATORS' OPINIONS

Washington, May 26.
Prominent members of the Senate to-day characterised Japan's despatch of—further troops to China as a new step towards the domination of Asia.

Senator Homer T. Bone, Democrat of Washington, and a strong advocate of American neutrality, declared: "Japan is literally exploding over into Eastern Asia due to the lack of population control. Under her military leadership the Japanese will continue to spread in China until China organises herself satisfactorily to control her own affairs and to repel the Japanese."

"Probably this occupation will benefit Japan only through providing an outlet for a virulent and active people. However, the militarists would promote this expansion in order to justify the Budget expenditure, if for no other reason."

"Japan knows the world will not war upon her for her activities, and she will continue them as long as she deems it desirable," said Senator Bone.

WANTS FULL CONTROL
Senator William King, Democrat of Utah, asserted that "Japan will not cease her activity until she controls all Asia."

Senator Thomas expressed the opinion that "some day this sort of thing will lead to a great war, from which some country will emerge to dominate most of the world."

"It may be years before it happens, but it seems inevitable," he said.

Senator Key Pittman, Democrat of Nevada, observed: "We announce a programme helpful to China, and Japan renounces her attempts to intimidate China."

He said he thought China would avoid retaliation until Japan was engaged in a war with Russia.—United Press.

ANGLO-DUTCH CO-OPERATION

PLAN EMBRACES ALL SHIPPING LINES

The Hague, May 26.
Details of a plan for co-operation between British and Dutch air and sea lines, prepared by a joint committee, were considered when the conference opened to-day, attended by representatives of Imperial Airways, Royal Dutch Airways, and all prominent British and Dutch European and Oriental shipping lines.

Both trips and fares were discussed.—Reuter.

TALK OF WAR RENEWED

ITALIAN LEADERS SHOW ANXIETY

NATION ANGERED BY BRITAIN'S ACTIONS

Rome, May 26.
War talk was renewed here to-day as the man who still calls himself the Emperor of Ethiopia approached Gibraltar, en route to London.

The mounting anger of Italians seemed to point clearly to a new period of dangerous tension. Britain is again in the spot-light for pursuing policies inimical to Italian interests.

The Italians' ire has been aroused because Great Britain placed the cruiser Capetown at Emperor Selassie's disposal. They are also angered because London is likely to become the focal point of anti-Italian propaganda.

It is indicated that Italian leaders are really alarmed over what they consider to be a situation steadily growing worse.

Italy's anxiety is heightened by the fact that informed diplomats continue to believe the hints of an Italo-German rapprochement are merely a smoke-screen and that Germany does not intend to abandon any possibility for an alliance with Italy.

Unless the situation improves prior to the League of Nations meeting on June 16 it seems certain that Italy will withdraw from Geneva for good.—United Press.

Books His Passage

Passages for the Negus and his retinue have been booked aboard the P. and O. liner Corfu.

There will be no official reception when the Emperor arrives on Friday aboard H.M.S. Capetown, and he will probably stay aboard the cruiser while in Gibraltar.—Reuter Bulletin Service.

Travels Incognito

London, May 26.
Apparently eager to spare the British Government any embarrassment, Emperor Haile Selassie has informed the Foreign Office that he desires to remain incognito during his visit to England, enabling the Government to regard him as a private person, and neither the Government's guests nor one entitled to the customary honours given a sovereign.—United Press.

Britons Detained

Djibouti, May 26.
The Italian authorities at Djibouti have detained three British officers, Colonel Llewellyn, of the British Ambulance Unit who did such sterling service to the wounded in the Ethiopian war, and Major Beninck and Mr. Vaughan Jones, who went to Ethiopia in connection with the Blue Cross Society's work.—Reuter.

Postal Packet Found

London, May 26.
The missing non-confidential postal packet addressed from the British Legation at Addis Ababa to the British Consul at Djibouti, which was at first described in press messages from Abyssinia as a diplomatic bag, has now arrived at Djibouti, according to a statement in the House of Commons at question-time by Lord Cranborne.—British Wireless.

Urging Compromise

Moscow, May 26.
It is understood that the Kremlin is urging a compromise with Italy, believing that German policy entails the greatest threat to European peace. M. Radek, writing in Isvestia, says an eleventh hour attempt will be made to organise collective security along the lines of the regional peace pacts proposed by the late M. Barthou.

Urging collective security as the sole means of maintaining peace, M. Radek declares that England is unable to protect her interests single-handed against Italian attack, while an Anglo-German understanding would antagonise all the nations which are apprehensive of German aggression.—Reuter.

NEW WESTMINSTER HOSPITAL

London, May 26.

SEVEN TRAPPED IN MINE

FEARED DROWNED IN WELSH PIT

ONE DEAD ON BRAVE ERRAND

London, May 26.
One man is drowned and six others are entombed and feared to have perished, following a rush of water from an old working into the Loveston Colliery pit, near Tenby, Wales, to-day.

The pit was flooded so quickly that fourteen of the twenty-one underground narrowly escaped. They had to run for their lives and scramble out through water nearly their own height, and then climb a haulage rope to the surface.

A man who went to warn their comrades was himself trapped and is believed to have perished.—Reuter Special.

LITTLE HOPE
London, May 26.
It is feared seven men have been drowned in a colliery disaster in South Wales.

While 20 men of day shift were at work to-day in Loveston Pit in Pembrokeshire, which only recently had been re-opened after several years, water broke through the roof of the workings which are six hundred feet deep.

Thirteen of the men succeeded in fighting their way to safety.

Rescue work is being feverishly pursued, but owing to the rising water the difficulties are great. One body has been recovered, but nothing has been seen or heard of the six other men who were trapped.—British Wireless.

AUSTRALIA TARIFF REDUCTIONS

BENEFIT TO U.K. TRADE

London, May 26.
In a House of Commons answer regarding tariff amendments recently discussed in the Australian Parliament, the President of Board of Trade said on the basis of recent import statistics, the reductions made affecting United Kingdom trade amounting to £1,500,000. The Commonwealth Government had introduced important proposals relating to the import of cotton and rayon goods, motor cars and some other commodities.

While it was not possible to estimate the exact effect of these new proposals on United Kingdom exports to Australia, he was very glad to say they included measures, notably those relating to cotton and rayon goods, which should prove of substantial benefit to the United Kingdom trade.

Mr. Runciman said he shared the hope of the Commonwealth Government that the arrangements would strengthen trade between the two countries.—British Wireless.

Mrs. Helen Wills Moody will not go to Wimbledon to defend her title.

Interviewed by Reuter to-day she said it was a question of choosing between Wimbledon and Forest Hills.

"I'd like to get back the American title more than to defend the Wimbledon championship," Mrs. Moody said.

She explained she was unable to be away from home for the length of time required for the European trip.—Reuter.

HOTEL CO. CAPITAL REDUCTION

DIRECTORS DIFFER BUT PLAN PASSED

RECORD LOW BANK DEBT

The fact that five Directors of the Hongkong and Shanghai Hotels, Ltd., favoured reconstruction of the Company's balance-sheet along the lines recently announced, whilst two opposed the proposals, was disclosed at the annual general meeting of shareholders, held this morning at Exchange Building.

Mr. J. H. Taggart, in his speech, said the dissentient Directors held the view that complete writing off of all reserves would, under present circumstances, be sufficient, and/or that the capital should not be reduced before the reserves were first eliminated. The majority of the Directors, however, held that it was absolutely necessary that certain reserves should be maintained. Moreover, considerable future savings in depreciation would be effected, and, as a result, the Company should return to a dividend-paying basis much earlier than it would otherwise do.

ARAB LEADERS LOSE CONTROL

UNABLE TO CHECK LAWLESSNESS

AUTHORITIES BOUND TO QUELL VIOLENCE

Jerusalem, May 26.
Bands of armed Arabs are becoming bolder, particularly in North Palestine, and individual ambush attacks are assuming almost the character of risings.

Motorised convoys are being attacked, in spite of the presence of armed escorts.

Jewish crops are being burned and telephone wires cut continuously. As a result the telephone communication between Haifa and Cairo was interrupted at noon to-day.

It is believed that the Arab leaders are ready to call off the general strike to check the lawlessness if they can find any way out, as they realise they are rapidly losing control of the younger hot-heads.

Sir Arthur Waugh, the High Commissioner, will not yield on the major points of British policy and is determined to suppress all lawlessness before initiating negotiations. The difficulty is to find some common ground for an immediate solution of the present troubles and creating an atmosphere of calm for parleys.—Reuter.

EUROPEANS INJURED IN CAR CRASH

PULLED FROM WRECK BY VILLAGERS

CAR CATCHES FIRE

A serious and mysterious motor accident, necessitating the removal to hospital of three persons, two of whom are still unconscious, occurred near the Nine-Mile Beach, on the Castle Peak Road at 9.30 this morning, when the vehicle in which they were riding crashed over an embankment and fell on the beach below, later bursting into flames.

The victims of the accident are Mr. C. H. Unbunham, general manager of the Hume Pipe Co. (Far East), Ltd., Mr. J. E. Barnes, manager of Calender's Cable and Construction Co., and Cheung Kai-fong, the chauffeur. All are in the Kowloon Hospital, the two last-named still being unconscious at 2 o'clock this afternoon.

The car involved in the accident was No. 237, a Ford V-8, owned by the Hume Pipe Co. The circumstances under which it came to grief are not yet known, but shortly after the mishap the occupants were rescued by villagers, being extricated before the car caught fire.

Mr. Unbunham received slight injuries to his head and body. Mr. Barnes was badly injured in the back, while the chauffeur received serious head injuries.

SIX LOST IN SHIPS' COLLISION

TRAWLER SINKS IN THREE MINUTES

CARGO CRAFT DAMAGED

London, May 26.
Six lives have been lost by drowning in the North Sea as a result of a collision off Aldborough, near Flamborough Head, on the Yorkshire coast, between a Hull trawler, the Picador 424 tons, and a London steamer, the San Salvador, of 5,805 tons.

The collision occurred in dense fog this morning. The Picador, which was returning to Hull from the fishing grounds, sank in three minutes. The San Salvador, which was bound for the Tyne from South America, with a cargo of oil, picked up fourteen of the Picador's crew of twenty.

The San Salvador was damaged and is taking in water. She is making for port.—British Wireless.

OFFICER'S VIGILANCE

Jerusalem, May 26.
The vigilance of a police officer saved a train from disaster to-day.

When he saw smoke curling up from the railway track he stopped an oncoming train, further up the line and returned to investigate what he considered a suspicious circumstance.

His suspicions were well founded. He found the smoke was from a fuse connected with several sticks of dynamite.—Reuter Special.

HEIMWEHR DECIDE TO FIGHT

CONFERENCE DEFIES SCHUSCHNIGG

CHIEFS LOYAL TO PRINCE

Vienna, May 27.
The Heimwehr, still loyal to Prince von Starhemberg, are not going to allow their organisation to be extinguished without a struggle. This fact is proved by the outcome of a protracted secret conference of all provincial leaders: a laconic communique announcing that the Heimwehr headquarters is being transferred to Linz.

Linz is Prince von Starhemberg's birthplace.

Herr Karl Weminger has been appointed Chief of the Heimwehr General Staff and the conference affirmed the intention of the Prince, its leader, to pursue the fight for the aims for which it was organised. The conference also affirmed its loyalty to Prince von Starhemberg.

It is learned on high authority that the Heimwehr has a new programme consists of arming its members to the teeth, despite the Chancellor-Dictator's intention to disarm them.

As far as possible, Heimwehr troops will join the official militia, but they will retain their Heimwehr allegiance. The remainder of the men will be organised to resist disarmament.

The Vice-Chancellor, Herr E. Baar-Baarenfels, elevated to that position when Chancellor Kurt Schuschnigg ousted Prince von Starhemberg, and other members of Dr. Schuschnigg's Cabinet who are Heimwehr, will not resign from the Government.—Reuter.

TAJAKBAR FANCIED IN DERBY

BUT NO HORSE IS OUTSTANDING

ONE ENGLISH FAVOURITE

Epsom, May 26.
In spite of usual rumours that well-backed Derby candidates are suffering various complaints, all entries are fit.

The problem of selection is reduced by the scratching of Monument, Plaster Cast and Star Comedian, but still the picking of the winner by the blindfold method, with a pin, appears as good a way as any.

The trainer of Tajakbar, Bahasant, Mahmood and Noble King stated that Tajakbar was the best he had if the going was hard and Noble King if the course is soft. It is understood the Aga Khan fancies Tajakbar more than Bahasant and Mahmood.

The race may be memorable since Lord Astor, Gordon Richards and a lady owner, in this case Mrs. Dorothy Paget, have yet to win a Derby, and all have chances, with Fairy Up, Tajakbar and Thankerton bearing their respective colours.

Of the first eight favourites, out of twenty-two probable starters, only Mr. Alfred Butts' Noble King is English born and English owned. The others belong to American, French and Indian owners. All the outsiders are English.

If Mr. Woodward's Boswell, an American entry, wins the race it will be the first American-owned winner since Durbar in 1914.—Reuter Special.

Widowed Queen

Faces:

(1) Five Years IN BLACK (2) Life Ban ON GAY FROCKS

Cairo, May 18.

Queen Nazli, grief-stricken since the death of her husband, King Fuad of Egypt, has spent most of the time with her four young daughters in her own apartments in the Cairo palace.

She refuses to receive visitors. When the Premier called to offer condolences she would not see him. Instead she sent the Grand Chamberlain to express her thanks.

The Queen is the forty-one-year-old daughter of Sabry Pasha, a Turkish nobleman. She married King Fuad in 1919.

AS QUEEN She has been a leader of fashion, wearing gay-coloured dresses of exquisite taste—all of them from Paris—betting her vivacious temperament.

AS QUEEN MOTHER She will not renounce the veil. She will wear black for five years. Even after that extra long period of mourning Court etiquette will never again allow her to wear coloured dresses.

LAST JOURNEY

Twenty-one cannon shots, fired at one-minute intervals, announced to a nation in mourning that their King had started on the first stage of his last journey: the coffin being taken to Abdin Palace, a two-hour procession.

GAOL SENTENCE ON WOMAN MOTORIST

BAIL PENDING AN APPEAL

LICENCE SUSPENDED FOR LIFE

A woman motorist was sentenced to prison for two months at Epsom police court recently for driving a motor-car in a manner dangerous to the public. Her licence was suspended for life.

Notice of appeal was given, and Mrs. Winn was allowed bail. The Bench declined to restore the licence pending the appeal.

A summons for driving without due care and attention was dismissed under the Probation of Offenders Act. On a summons for failing to stop after an accident Mrs. Winn was fined 20s. She had to pay £6 10s. 6d. costs and her licence was endorsed.

The offence was stated to have occurred at Felcham, Surrey.

For the police it was stated that at 10 p.m. on Jan. 8 Mrs. Winn's car pulled out to pass another and hit a woman cyclist, whose legs were broken.

Mrs. Winn did not stop. There was found near the scene of the accident a door-handle and the reflector of the near-side lamp.

The next morning Mrs. Winn went to the police-station and said that she understood that the police were looking for a green car. She was driving her car the previous night and knocked into a sign at a roundabout, but she did not know there had been an accident with a cyclist. She did not, she said, see a cyclist.

A solicitor who appeared for Mrs. Winn said his client had been driving for six years, and there had never been any charge against her before.

The chairman of the magistrates said they had been unable to find any redeeming feature in the case.

COLONY'S SKYLINE GROWS HIGHER

THE skyline at both European and Chinese sections of the Island of Hongkong is gradually becoming higher.

Lack of building space is forcing property owners to erect taller buildings.

This particularly applies to Chinese residential sections. Last year two new residential buildings with six floors made their appearance, bringing the total number of the Colony up to 22.

Since 1930 property owners of Chinese residential buildings have constructed two new buildings of eight storeys, fifteen of seven storeys, eight of six storeys, 74 of five storeys, and 75 of four storeys, these figures representing the increase in the number of buildings of this type since 1930.

On the other hand there were last year only 5,102 buildings of three storeys, as compared with 5,180 in 1930; 1,372 of two storeys, as compared with 1,570 in 1930 and 627 of one storey, as compared with 686 in 1930. Thus there has been a substantial decrease in the number of buildings having only one, two and three storeys, as compared with the increase in the number of buildings of higher type.

No Chinese type dwellings on the mainland reach above five storeys, there being eight of maximum height last year, as compared with one in 1930. But on the mainland, also, small size buildings have given away to higher ones. Last year there were only 1,079 one-storey buildings, as compared with 1,182 in 1930; 666 two-storey buildings as compared with 916 in 1930.

KOWLOON'S GROWTH

Kowloon has shown a more rapid growth this decade than the Island of Victoria. In 1930 there were 13,167 Chinese type buildings (with a total of 43,232 floors) on the mainland, as compared with 24,402 floors on the mainland.

By the end of last year the island total had increased to only 14,006 buildings (with 47,382 floors) as compared with the increase to 10,297 buildings (with 31,233 floors) on the mainland.

At the present rate of increase, there will be more Chinese type buildings on the mainland than on the island before the end of the current decade.

Sanitary Board statistics reveal that there are a total of 22,363 tenement buildings in the Hongkong health districts, as compared with a total of 20,042 in 1930. It is estimated that the total number of houses primarily erected for domestic purposes are 26,471.

PEAK BUILDINGS

This total includes 280 buildings, with a total of 698 floors, on the Peak. The Peak total includes eight new buildings (with a total of 19 floors) erected last year. Only one Peak building was demolished.

BOSTON GAINS ON YANKEES

LEAGUE LEADERS NOSED OUT

GIANTS AND CARDS WIN

New York, May 20.
Detroit Tigers, last year's champions, out-slugged the Chicago White Sox at Chicago to-day, to the tune of twelve to nine. The Tigers scored on sixteen hits against fourteen of the opposition's. Chicago had two errors and Detroit one.

The League fall-enders, St. Louis Browns, went wild when they met the Cleveland Indians. Bottomley smacked a homer and they scored eight runs on eleven hits, while the Indians were scoring five on five hits. The Indians had two errors.

Boston gained on the League leaders, the New York Yankees, in a tight game at the Yankee Stadium. Crossett hit a homer for the Yankees and three others pelted home on the run hits inside the park. Boston turned nine hits, including Fox's homer, into five runs and won by a 4-0 score. New York erred once.

TABLES TURNED

In the second game of their double-header, Chicago beat Detroit nine to two, on fifteen hits to seven. There were no errors.

The Washington Senators beat Philadelphia eight to two, scoring on thirteen hits to eight.

The New York Giants beat the Brooklyn Dodgers to gain a few points in their average, but they did not lessen the distance between them and the League leaders, St. Louis Cardinals, who continued to advance at the expense of Pittsburgh.

The Giants won seven to three, scoring fourteen hits to the Pirates' seven, but falling into three errors. Leiber homered. Vaughan's homer for the Pirates did not help them against St. Louis, when the score was six to two. St. Louis hit nine times and the Pirates seven. There were no errors.

Philadelphia swamped Boston, seven to two, setting seventeen hits against eleven, two of them homers, by Morris and J. Moore.

Chicago Cubs, last year's League winners, thumped the Reds ten to four. Cuyler hit a homer for Cincinnati, but fifteen batters got to first for the Cubs. The Reds had two errors.—Reuter.

Thurston "Returns" From Grave

FAMED MAGICIAN

New York, May 24. Believers in the supernatural are convinced that the late Howard Thurston, famous magician, has at least completed one leg of his promise to "return" from the grave.

Sceptics attributed it to a stray April breeze or a wobbly nail in the wall. Magician Joseph Dunninger reported that the idol in a glass case—which Thurston gave him years ago and promised to break to prove there was life after death—has moved slightly.

An oil painting of a Hindu snake charmer, which hung two feet above it, crashed to the floor. Apparently it struck the idol case in its passage. "I honestly don't believe Thurston had anything to do with it," said Dunninger, noted illusionist and expert of false mediums. "I don't believe in spiritualism, I don't believe in the dead returning. But I feel honour bound to report the incident."

Dunninger said the painting, in a heavy gilt frame, had hung on his bedroom wall for the last four years. Below it, also suspended by a wire hook on the wall, was the small glass case containing the idol.

It is of a rare grayish-green hue, purporting to be an image of Ramzes II, which the late Thurston brought back from Luxor, Egypt, and presented to Dunninger 12 years ago. "If I can come back," he told him, "I will smash the case to prove there is life after death."

"I heard a heavy crash," Dunninger said. "I naturally was startled and my first impulse was to look at the idol case. I thought the idol had fallen. I lit my light and found that the painting above it had dropped to the floor, striking the idol case but not damaging it."

GIANTS THAT DWARF OUR "PUNY SUN"

Seen Through "Peephole" In The Milky Way

New York, May 20.

OUR sun, once regarded as the proud ruler of the universe, is more and more being made to feel its insignificance as astronomers, nightly peering at the heavens, compare it to a tallow candle in contrast with some stars which range the heavens.

To-day comes news of the sighting of a new cluster of 50,000 stars, many much larger than "our relatively puny sun."

METEORIT FELS 200 TREES

"Mass Of Flame"

Barcelona, May 18. A HUGE meteorite, falling at enormous speed, crashed to earth at Villarejo de las Fuentes, in the province of Cuenca, Southern Spain, to-day, uprooting more than 200 trees and splitting great rocks.

The phenomenon was witnessed by Hermilio Fuente, a local miller, who said it was preceded by lightning and a "mass of flame," followed by deafening thunder.

Travelling from south-west to north-west, the meteorite ploughed a way through a dense wood of oaks. Approaching the road from Turuel to Tarazona, it lost speed, and eventually came to rest on property belonging to a local resident.

WOMAN CHIEF OF CLAN SOCIETY

MRS. FLORA MACLEOD ELECTED

Edinburgh, May 18.

CLANSMEN gathered here from all parts of the Highlands to-night and elected a woman as leader of the Clan Macleod Society.

She is Mrs. Macleod of Macleod, one of the first women to hold the position of chief of the whole clan to be considered later.

Mrs. Macleod is the elder daughter of the late Sir Reginald Macleod, for many years head of the clan, and her election was the unanimous wish of members of the society.

HER ISLAND HOME The now chieftain of the society was not present at to-night's meeting, but from her home in historic Dunvegan Castle, on the Isle of Skye, she told me that she was ready and eager to assume her responsibilities.

Following the death of Mrs. Macleod's father, at the age of 88 last year, who left no male heir, it was claimed that the chieftainship fell on Mr. Hugh Vernon Macleod, an Australian. He declared, however, that he would abide by the decision of Sir Reginald's daughters.

Mrs. Macleod is already accepted by many members of the clan as their hereditary leader.

Miss Catherine Macleod, of Ardgour, aged 10, is claiming the chieftainship of the Macleods of Ardgour.

A few years before the war Miss Menzies of Menzies, on the death of her brother Sir Neil, the last baronet and chief of the clan, was elected by clansmen in his stead.

Ladies Will Do The Smoking In A.D. 1966

—SAYS EXPERT

Omaha, Neb., May 24. The ladies will do all the smoking 30 years from now, Dr. Victor E. Levine, Creighton College bio-chemist and nutrition expert, has predicted.

The men—a perverse lot, he said—will come to believe that smoking is a woman's prerogative, the scientist recalled. But so was the use of perfume.

"In the reign of Queen Elizabeth, parliament passed a law forbidding women to use perfume because it was feared there would not be enough for both sexes."

But the women went right on using it—more than ever. "Perfume," Dr. Levine said, "became an article of use for the effeminate, and men abandoned it altogether."

He said that's what's going to happen to smoking, and predicted dire things for the appearance of the feminine species.

"Smoking takes away from the young woman the softness, smoothness and delicacy of the skin that is the charm of youth," Dr. Levine warned. "It takes away the clear and vital complexion of youth and brings in its stead the rough and muddy complexion of age. It darkens the whites of the eyes. It removes the lustre and attractiveness from the 'windows of the soul.' And the more a woman smokes, the more make-up she requires."

The scientist smokes cigarettes himself—moderately.—United Press.

HOTEL CO. CAPITAL REDUCTION

general meeting, approval was given to the reconstruction proposals.

CHAIRMAN'S SPEECH

Addressing shareholders, Mr. Taggart said:—Gentlemen: The report of your Directors and statement of accounts for the financial year ended 31st December, 1935, having been in your hands for the prescribed period, I will, with your permission, treat them as read. The Auditors' Report is as follows:—We have audited the above accounts and Balance Sheet with the books and documents of the Hotel Co. and the Accounts and Balance Sheet of the Shanghai Branch rendered by Messrs. Thomson & Co., as Accountants to the Company in Shanghai, certified by them as correct. We have obtained all the information and explanations we have required. In our opinion such Balance Sheet is properly drawn up so as to exhibit a true and correct view of the financial position of the Company according to the best of our information and explanations given to us, and as shown by the books of the Company—Percy Smith, Seth and Fleming, Incorporated Accountants, Auditors, Hongkong, 27th April, 1936.

The accounts for the financial year 1935, which are under your survey to-day, cover a period within which has been generated many difficulties and disappointments for Hotels operation in the Far East, and particularly in Shanghai, which has been marked by a severe winter, the largest establishments comprised in your undertaking are located. No remainder from me is needed to emphasise to you the condition of severe financial stringency which has continued to exist in Shanghai during the period now under review, the retrospective effect of which is reflected in the earnings of your Company in common with other commercial undertakings.

Your hotels in that port, although, as you are aware, of an old-fashioned type, comparing most unfavourably with the numerous establishments of modern construction recently erected there, have attracted what can be considered in the circumstances a satisfactory revenue. The advantage, however, of an encouraging ratio of the occupancy has been offset by the necessity, compelled by competitive action, to accept cut rates, and this procedure had the result of a negligible contribution only accruing to the General Working Account from those establishments after relative overheads had been met.

HONGKONG DOES WELL.—The Hongkong establishments fared more favourably than I am pleased to say. Indeed, results achieved at most of our Hotels in the Colony during the first and last quarters of the year were highly satisfactory.

Seasonally, however, the summer season of 1935, which was the era of "doldrums" sufficiently dull to almost eradicate the satisfactory results of the autumn and winter trading. The high value of the local dollar during the summer of 1935, coupled with the attraction of low currency values in North China and Japan resorts which prevailed vis-a-vis Hongkong currency, had the effect of completely eliminating the summer tourist patronage customarily received at our establishments in the Colony during that season.

In view of the foregoing, I regret that the Profit and Loss Account before you delineates poor working results substantially below those attained during previous years, notwithstanding the fact that the items of contra charge were reduced to the lowest limit compatible with prudent and efficient operation. The main item of credit—"Balance of Working Account"—$430,375.55, falls below the similar credit for the previous year by some $270,000.00. The item "Rents of Shops and Offices" similarly reveals a considerable decrease of some $38,000.00, which is due to the reduction made to tenants on rentals, enforced this diminution.

A welcome re-entry to the credit of Profit and Loss Account this year is the item "Dividend on Investment"—$13,867.48. This relates to the dividend distributed by the subsidiary Company, the Grand Hotel des Wagons-Lits, Ltd., on a holding of 5,651 Shares in that Company. The last issued balance sheet of the subsidiary Company, as at the 30th June, 1935, is attached to the report and accounts before you, in which relation I am pleased to be able to state that the Hotel in Peking operated by the subsidiary Company enjoyed much improved revenue during its last accounting period, and that the current revenue returns received here from Peking continue to present satisfactory figures.

With the exception of the charge in respect of "Bad and Doubtful Debts Written Off" items to the debit of the Profit and Loss Account are all on a much reduced level in comparison with those embodied in the accounts for the previous year. It is regretted that the excepted item referred to displays a serious increase over amounts provided for such a contingency over the past few years. It is, however, difficult to obtain prompt settlement of accounts in these times. I should point out that, in assessing the amount of the provision in question it was deemed prudent to maintain our standard basis by excluding from schedules of debts for incorporation in the balance sheet all transactions ante dated twelve months prior to the closing of the books. It is confidently anticipated that a substantial proportion of the items provided for will eventually be recovered, and I can state that satisfactory headway in that direction has already been made during the current year.

DEPRECIATION

You will observe that depreciation on the circulating assets has been written off to the extent of $135,748.37, but depreciation on buildings and furniture and fixtures has not been provided for in view of the reconstruction proposals to be submitted for your consideration at the extraordinary general meeting which immediately follows this meeting.

Touching upon the balance sheet, I submit there is little calling for comment. I would mention, however, that between the time of certification by the Auditors and the printing of the Accounts an omission has occurred in relation to the item "Furniture and Fixtures," the words "plus additions" having been omitted. These additions totalled $7,751.35, representing the cost of a consignment of modern electric heaters, together with some new furniture and carpets for Hongkong establishments.

Turning to the liabilities side of the balance sheet you will see that the special "Repairs and Renewals Reserve" has suffered depletion during the year by $10,932.41. This relates mainly to special expenditure incurred in painting the whole of the exterior of the Hongkong Hotel, and in connection with the electrical installation of certain of our establishments in order to conform to the requirements of Government Regulations.

The balance sheet reveals one solitary item in the midst of what you may consider my somewhat depressing remarks. I refer to the reduction of the Company's mortgage indebtedness effected during the year. You will observe that the figure under that heading in the balance sheet before you is $229,460.61, which compares favourably with a mortgage liability of $454,896.83 at the 31st December, 1934. I feel that the reduction made during the year 1935 of approximately $165,000 is gratifying in the circumstances, as also is the fact that the indebtedness of your undertaking has been further reduced since the turn of the year and now stands at the lowest figure on record covering the past fifty years.

I do not consider there are other items in the balance sheet and accounts upon which I need specially comment. I would, however, crave your attention for a few minutes in relation to the proposals which will come up for your consideration at the extraordinary general meeting to be held later to-day with regard to the scheme for reconstruction of the Hotel Co. of the Company by the utilisation of certain Reserves and by cancelling capital to the extent of $2.50 per share.

In my circular letter addressed to shareholders under date the 27th April last, a copy of which is in your hands, I stated that your Directors had given serious consideration to the present financial position of the Company. This consideration has entailed Directors over a lengthy period.

LAND VALUES

During the past few years—years in respect of which the trading results have exhibited a divided distribution to Shareholders and also years which have been bare of dividend—considerable sums have been charged in the Profit and Loss Accounts by way of depreciation on buildings and furniture and fixtures. In addition, the resultant position of the Company, strengthened by the presence of reserves substantial in amount, which, with the exception of the Land and Buildings Reserve, had been allocated out of profits in past years. Moreover, it was rightly considered that in view of the value of the land owned by the Company as against the market worth of such land, a considerable hidden reserve existed, to offset a possible drop in the value of buildings and their equipment below the residual value thereof appearing from the book figures. However, the experience of the past two years have wrought a drastic change in that outlook. Particularly is this so in Shanghai where the collapse of some important land companies operating on an extensive scale, has caused a veritable slump in the value of land in the circumstances your Board considered that remedial steps in relation to the balance sheet should be taken immediately.

In addition to the altered situation with regard to property values, the disadvantages (connected with the revolutionary ideas now attaching to the construction of new hotels and their equipment) has become so markedly apparent as to call for a new interpretation of "modern accommodation" in relation to the demands of patrons and thus operate to the detriment of older structures. Your establishments and their equipment therefore, although constituting assets which have been subjected to depreciation at rates considered sufficient to reduce each unit thereof to a break up value within the period of its effective life, must in the light of modern conditions be regarded as standing in the books at figures far in excess of their actual capitalised value as earning units.

As indicated in my circular letter, the aim of the Reconstruction proposals submitted for your consideration is to write down all assets to figures which represent their real worth as assets dependent upon their earning capacity. To achieve this it is proposed to write off from book values as at the 31st December, 1935, the amounts scheduled in the circular before you amounting to $8,856,737.44. It is proposed to effect this (1) by writing up the book values of land as at the 31st December, 1935, by $550,980.10; (2) by transferring Reserves to the amount scheduled in the circular, totalling $2,318,840.14; and (3) by cancelling capital to the extent of $2.50 per share, making available on the 1,193,867 shares issued—$2,084,867.50.

The book figures relating to land have been adjusted so as to bring land valuations to amounts which in the opinion of your Board conform more nearly to present day values, having regard to location and to potential earning capacity. The net result is an increase in the book value of land by $550,980.10.

DIRECTORS DIFFER

I should state that the scheme I have referred to bears the recommendation of your Board by a majority of five to two. The dissentient Directors hold the view that the complete writing off of all Reserves appearing in the balance sheet would in present circumstances, be sufficient and/or that the capital should not be reduced before the reserves were first eliminated.

In substantiating the opinion of the majority of the Directors as embodied in the scheme for your consideration, I submit that it is an absolute necessity that certain reserves should be maintained and in this relation would point out in the first place that the scheme calls for the retention of $550,000 as a Land Reserve, which sum represents the accretion in amount of the new computation for land values in the adjusted balance sheet over the old balance sheet figures, and which is considered should be retained to be held in reserve against possible losses on realisation of any of the properties.

Secondly, I would point out that it is desired to retain $450,000 as a General Reserve to provide resilience against the contingency of any periods of adverse trading, which is considered a necessary and reasonable precaution.

You will observe from the summary showing the amounts to be written off assets under the reconstruction proposals, that the items earmarked for drastic reduction are buildings, furniture and fittings, machinery and plant, linen, crockery and glassware. The main application of these appropriations has been directed to the buildings and equipment of the Palace and Astor House Hotels, Shanghai, and the Peak Hotel, Hongkong, and in a minor degree to the Hongkong Hotel. You will appreciate that "obsolescence" has made inroads into the value of these properties to an extent in excess of the amount of depreciation provided on them over the past few years. It is for this reason that the reduction on the item "Investments" is called for in order to make similar provision in respect of the Grand Hotel des Wagons-Lits, Peking.

The item "Construction in Progress" which is eliminated under the Scheme represents mainly expenditure on plans, site levelling, etc. in connection with the Hotel on the Shamoon it was proposed to construct some years ago.

TRUER PERSPECTIVE

In the opinion of your Directors the effect of their proposals as dealt with in my preceding remarks is to present a reconstructed balance sheet representing a true perspective of the position of the Company in the light of the abnormal times through which we are passing. Considerable future saving in depreciation will be effected if you adopt and sanction these proposals, and as a result thereof the Company should return to a dividend paying basis much earlier than would otherwise be the case. Moreover, your Company will be placed in a more mobile position to embark upon disposal and/or reconstruction and development of certain assets.

Referring to the business for this meeting, I now formally propose that the report of the Directors and the accounts for the financial year ended 31st December, 1935, as presented, be adopted, and that, as recommended by your Directors, the balance at credit of the Profit and Loss Account, amounting to $342,001.65 be carried forward to next year's account, and I shall be obliged if some shareholder will kindly second such proposal whereupon questions as to the report and accounts may be raised.

SECONDER'S SPEECH

Seconding the adoption of the report and accounts, Mr. Frank Austin said—Mr. Chairman and Gentlemen,—In rising to second your (Continued on Page 4.)

LAD MAULED BY DOG

COURT ISSUES CONTROL ORDER

Miss Leung Pik-yung, of 111 Leighton Hill Road, for whom a representative appeared, pleaded guilty before Mr. S.P. Haffour at the Central Magistracy this morning to summoning for keeping a black mongrel dog without a licence and allowing it abroad without a muzzle and not on a lead.

Sergt. C. Blackburn stated it was a very bad case. The dog ran out and bit a small boy, Kwok Man-tung, aged 10, of 109 Leighton Hill Road, in three different places. The lad was so badly mauled that he had to be taken to the Government Civil Hospital, where the doctor ordered daily anti-rabies treatment.

Sergt. Blackburn added that Mr. Calthrop, A.S.P., had requested him to apply to the Magistrate for an order to keep the dog under proper control under penalty.

The Magistrate informed defendant that the dog is to be kept under control and if the order is disobeyed she would be fined anything up to $25.

OTHER CASES

F. Bunn, of "The Mirror", Deep Water Bay, was fined $25 on a summons relating to three unmuzzled Alsatian dogs in Island Road.

Defendant stated they were puppies and ran away from the house. One was killed.

Sub-Inspector J. Dredge agreed it was an unfortunate accident. He (S.I. Dredge) was driving along and the three puppies were on the hillside just below the defendant's residence. Another car, driven by Mr. R. Ummus, was coming from the opposite direction and as the two cars were passing, the three dogs ran out and Mr. Ummus could not avoid the accident.

His Worship remarked that it was necessary to keep a dog in that vicinity.

Dr. C. H. Wan, of 4 Garden Terrace, was fined $5 in respect of two unlicensed dogs.

CHINESE MISSION TO SIAM

DUE IN HONGKONG TO-MORROW

With a view to improving the relationships between the two countries and in order to gain first-hand knowledge of trade conditions there, the Nanking Government is sending a good-will mission to Siam.

The mission, which is due in Hongkong to-morrow by the m.v. Victoria, is headed by Mr. Ling Bing, of the Ministry of Foreign Affairs, Finance and Industry.

In an interview with a representative of the Telegraph, Mr. Vilas Ostanandus, the Siamese Trade Commissioner in Hongkong, said he was glad the Nanking Government had decided to send a mission to his country because of the many false rumours that Chinese were being ill-treated there. He could not see how such rumours could have emanated as one of the principles of the recently revised Constitution of his country was to accord equal treatment to all nationalities. Although he was not officially informed of the visit, he would be glad to give whatever assistance he could to the mission.

It will be recalled that the Canton Government recently sent a similar mission to Siam, headed by Mr. Wong Li-shu, Director of Education. The present mission is expected to arrive in Bangkok on June 6.

Chubby And Contented!

Babies who are kept in good health by the occasional use of Baby's Own Tablets always look well and feel well. They gain weight regularly, have no trouble with their teething, sleep soundly, enjoy food and profit fully by it.

This is no mere empty statement, but is verified by ample evidence from "family physicians"—from gratified parents, and from others who are well qualified to know, such, for example, as Mrs. S. Biddood, of Campbellford, Ontario.

"Being a nurse I have the handling of a good many babies," writes Mrs. Biddood, "and I can honestly recommend Baby's Own Tablets to mothers everywhere. Whenever I am called in to a sick, fretful, crying baby I always give Baby's Own Tablets before trying any other remedy. I find them very soothing for feverish, teething little ones, and even the most delicate child can take them."

Baby's Own Tablets are the prescription of a physician—child specialist, and are unsurpassed as a corrective of infantile indigestion, constipation, colic, "wind." They also check diarrhoea, relieve colds and croup, expel worms. Of all chemists, Baby's Own Tablets.

THE STORY OF THE STEAMSHIP

Britain's mammoth luxury liner, the Queen Mary, sails on her maiden voyage to-day, thus opening another chapter in the epic story of the Atlantic steamship service. Contemplation of this event recalls that the story of the ship is a story of progress and romance. And it is largely a British story. It began in 1802, when the wooden vessel, the Charlotte Dundas, the first successful steamship, attained a speed of 3½ miles an hour on the Forth and Clyde Canal. Thirteen years later, the Thames had its first steam packet. The old sailing-ship captains and the crusty old admirals were aghast. They saw what they had regarded as the fantastic nightmares of a set of impractical visionaries materialising before their eyes. And they bitterly resented it. Worse was to come! These impractical fanatics contemplated sending a steam-driven vessel across the Atlantic—which was obviously absurd, said the orthodox experts; for no ship capable of carrying enough coal for the journey would ever be built. In 1833, the fanatics again startled the orthodox, for the Royal William, a paddle boat of 830 tons, relying entirely on its steam engines, crossed the Atlantic to Canada in nineteen days. Then began the struggle for ever-increasing size. The first great ship was the Britannia, built on the Clyde in 1840 for Samuel Cunard, a Nova Scotia merchant. It was of about 1,150 tons and 235 feet long. British shipbuilders then made another revolutionary change; they began to build ships of iron and steel and to dream of still larger vessels. In 1860, the first "monster" ship, the Great Eastern, of about 18,915 tons and over 600 feet in length, made her maiden voyage. But she was before her time. She was built broadside on—the only way there was room to build her—on the Thames, and when she was finished it took three months, with the aid of specially built, powerful machinery to launch her. She was not a success from a commercial point of view, but it was more than thirty years before a bigger ship was built. The Great Eastern had one other great claim to fame: she laid the first cable across the Atlantic. Later, other nations began to compete for the Atlantic trade, and each of them attempted to build the largest vessel and capture what came to be called the Blue Riband of the Atlantic. Great Britain, the United States of America, France, Italy and Germany built some magnificent craft, until the French 80,000-ton Normandie started her career by beating all her competitors. Now comes another supreme British effort to capture all the laurels of the sea for size, speed, comfort, reliability and luxury. Pride of British shipbuilding achievement, the Queen Mary now sets out on her first voyage, carrying with her the hopes and wishes of Britons everywhere that she may win back for the premier maritime nation of the world the Blue Riband of the Atlantic. As a home writer has remarked, the maiden voyage of this giant vessel should serve the whole world as a sign that "ancient founts of inspiration" are not lost to Britain, and that nothing is further from her thought than resignation of her ocean primacy.

NOTES OF THE DAY

A mother in Russia will presently receive 2,000 roubles annually for every child beyond a total of seven, and 5,000 for all beyond the eleventh. The Soviet is out to raise its birthrate for the Soviet requires man-power to achieve its aims. This is just another experiment. It may or may not be dangerous. However, they are used to dangerous experiments in Russia. They have had social evolution since 1917, and there is no real reason why they should hesitate to enter into the biological field. It just complicates their task a little. The objection to honouring big families, we should think, lies in the risk of the quality of the progeny for quantity. It is true in any trade that the product of speed is regularly inferior to that of skill. And we can safely make the comparison since the Russians themselves, by the law, they are creating, have deliberately commercialised motherhood. It does not do to fool with Nature; and one certainly cannot fog her without leaving a bruise. It is our fear that the idea of stimulating the birthrate of a nation by the reward of roubles, or dollars or pounds, will result in the rearing of huge families by persons who are neither physically nor mentally fit for the job. The children will suffer; and the nation will defeat its own ends.

RECORD BREAKING UPON THE ATLANTIC:

*WHEN GREYHOUNDS RACE PAST
THE BISHOP ROCK LIGHTHOUSE*

By Captain J. G. BISSET, Commander Of The Ascania

TRANS-ATLANTIC records, like pie-crusts and some promises, are made to be broken. While giving full marks to the great French liner Normandie for her marvellous first voyage performance, we cherish the hope that our own Queen Mary will to-day wrest the mythical blue ribbon from her. To those who are unfamiliar with Transatlantic crossings a few words of explanation may be of interest. The course for the ocean passage lies between Bishop Rock Lighthouse and the Ambrose Channel Lightship, a distance of approximately 3,000 miles. The word approximately is used because ships follow different official tracks at certain seasons of the year. For instance, during summer months, when icebergs drift down on the Labrador Current and infest the ordinary tracks, ships are diverted to a more southerly track giving a distance of 3,048 miles. During winter, when there are no loose bergs about, a more northerly track is used with a distance of 2,902 miles. Sometimes, owing to extraordinary ice conditions, a ship may be diverted from one track to another during the voyage.

To-night the new Cunard-White Star liner Queen Mary sets out on her maiden voyage across the Atlantic. Experts believe that she will have no difficulty in breaking the record set up last year by the French liner Normandie.

THE ship's position is obtained by observations of the heavenly bodies. In fine clear weather the result can be depended on to within a mile or two. This is known as the "observed position." If the sky is overcast, so that no observations can be taken, the position is estimated from the compass, current and drift. The usual method of estimating speed is by means of the revolutions of the propeller, which are recorded on automatic counters in the engine-room. Before making use of the revolutions, however, it is necessary to know the "pitch" of the propeller. This is supplied to the ship by the builders.

"Pitch" is the distance in feet and inches that a propeller would travel into a solid block during one revolution. Every kind of screw has a certain pitch, the most familiar example being the corkscrew, for which the number of turns required to penetrate the cork, divided into the length of the cork, gives the pitch. The chief engineer works out his day's run by multiplying the total revolutions from noon to noon by the pitch. If his figures alone were believed, the engines would arrive in port well ahead of the ship! But as the propellers are turning in a yielding body of water, they lose a good deal of their thrust, and the difference between the chief engineer's run and the actual run obtained by the navigators is termed "slip," and expressed in nautical miles per cent. "Slip" varies according to the weather. In light winds and smooth seas it may be as little as 3 per cent, but when the ship is plunging into a heavy head gale it may rise to 25 per cent. Navigators learn by experience how much to allow.

As the ship proceeds on her voyage the clock is altered each day to allow for the difference in time. New York time is five hours behind

London time—though New York might not all admit this. To make up for this difference on a ship of the speed of the Normandie the clock would be put back 1¼ hours each midnight going west, thus making up the five hours in four nights, and giving a 25¼-hour day. Going east the clock is put forward, giving a 22¾-hour day. This tends to upset the sleeping hours of some people, and especially of children. Allowance is naturally made for the five hours in the calculation of the average speed.

ALL miles referred to on board ship are nautical miles, distinct from a land mile. A statute or land mile is a purely arbitrary measure and was defined as 5,280 ft. by an Act of Parliament passed in the 25th year of the reign of "Good Queen Bess." It bears no relation to any scale in nature.

The nautical mile is 6,080 ft., and is arrived at by an exact division of the meridional circumference of the earth. Owing to the globe being bulged and flattened, the nautical mile varies slightly in length, being 6,040 ft. at the equator and 6,108 ft. at the poles, so a mean of 6,080 ft. is adopted, and this is correct in latitudes 48 deg. north or south. As an easy reminder, seven nautical miles are equal to 8.0 statute miles.

The nautical mile, a unit of length, must not be confused with the knot, a unit of speed. To say that a ship is doing 30 knots, means that she is covering 30 nautical miles per hour. To use the expression "30 knots per hour" is incorrect and immediately brands the speaker as a very amateur navigator.

The Gulf Stream is a factor that enters into Transatlantic records for about a 1,000 miles of the passage before arrival at New York. This stream runs in an easterly direction at the variable rate of ¼ to 1½ knots. Going west the ship has to steam against it and is liable to have one or two days of poor runs. Going east, it helps her along.

Gambiers on the day's run are keen students of the Gulf Stream, some of them almost conveying the impression that they have a controlling influence over its movements. But it is a flimsy jade and often spoils their calculations, as does the demon fog.

WHEN, in due course, the ship passes Ambrose Channel Lightship, the exact time is noted and termed "arrival." The total time on passage is then divided into the total mileage, and we have the average speed in knots and tenths. Ambrose Lightship is moored in the centre of New York Bay. It carries a powerful flashing light, also a siren, a radio beacon and a sub-marine bell for guiding ships in thick weather. The pilot boat cruises a couple of miles inside the lightship, and the ship, having stopped to embark a pilot, proceeds a distance of 14 miles up the channel and anchors at the Quarantine Grounds for examination by the Port Medical Officer and the Immigration Officials, and the mail is discharged into tenders. She then proceeds another ten miles up the harbour to her dock, where she is nosed into berth by a fleet of tugs. The record-breaking voyage (if records are broken) is over.

Radical Tax Suggestions By H. K. Civil Servants PETITION TO LONDON MEETS WITH UNFAVOURABLE REPLY

LOCAL OFFICIALS AND RECENT DRASTIC PAY CUT

COLONIAL OFFICE REJECTS SUGGESTIONS

RETRENCHMENT AS WAY OUT

"Telegraph" Special Representative

I AM ABLE TO REVEAL TO-DAY THAT ONE OF THE LAST OFFICIAL ACTS OF THE HON. MR. J. H. THOMAS, SECRETARY OF STATE FOR THE COLONIES, BEFORE HIS RESIGNATION LAST WEEK, WAS TO FORWARD AN UNFAVOURABLE REPLY TO A RECENT MASS PETITION BY HONGKONG CIVIL SERVANTS.

The petition, which was a voluminous document, covering several typewritten pages, related to the recent cut in civil servant salaries in Hongkong.

It contained several suggestions for alternative and less drastic methods of raising revenue in the Colony.

I understand that the Secretary of State for the Colonies, in his reply to the petition, stated that whatever course the Hongkong Government took to meet the serious financial position brought about by the depreciation of the dollar, the question of salaries reductions for the civil service was one that could under no circumstances be reviewed.

Alternative proposals for raising revenue, suggested in the petition, were rejected.

The petition was signed by a vast majority of the civil servants, only a small number refusing to add their signatures. Among those who joined in the suggestions it contained were the majority of Heads of Department.

Seven suggestions were made by the petitioners for alternative methods of raising revenue in the Colony.

Chief of these was that an income tax be imposed on the wealthy class. Methods whereby this tax could be collected were outlined.

The second suggestion related to the present assessment tax, two suggestions being made under this heading. One suggestion was that the present assessment of 17 per cent. on the rentals of all rateable property in the Colony should be increased.

ASSESSMENT TAX

Alternatively, it was suggested that a graduated scale of assessment be employed.

It was pointed out in the petition that a graduated scale, besides bringing in more revenue, would ensure that taxation would fall upon that portion of the population more able to bear it and would, in fact, affect the petitioners to a greater extent than the majority of Hongkong's tenants.

A third suggestion made in the petition was that the tax on excess consumption of water, rescinded last year, should be restored, or, alternatively, that the system of water supply should be on a per capita basis, instead of the present basis whereby water is supplied in quantities proportionate to the amount of assessment tax levied on a property.

It was pointed out that this latter suggestion, if adopted, would also tax those most able to pay, i.e. the heavy consumers of water, and would be more equitable than the present system of distribution.

Other suggestions made in the petition were that duties on liquor and tobacco be increased, that the tax on the motor industry be raised and that a heavier betting tax become effective. It was pointed out that these taxations would be on luxuries.

REDUCTION OF STAFF

Failing the adoption of any of the foregoing suggestions for raising revenue, the petitioners requested that the question of the staffing of the Hongkong Civil Service become the subject of inquiry in order that the services of surplus and unnecessary officials be disposed of.

Decrease in the number of officials in the Hongkong Civil Service would, it was pointed out in the petition, provide sufficient decrease in expenditure to allow the recent cut in civil service pay to be returned.

TEMPORARY LEVY

The cuts in the salaries of public servants, which are brought into force only recently, takes the form of a temporary levy on salaries, the amount of the levy being variable each year. The value of emoluments for pension purposes is not affected.

Rabies Menace

NOW IS THE TIME TO TAKE PRECAUTIONS

Rabies have not figured in the local weekly health returns for some time.

But it is anticipated that, with a return of the hot weather, the incidence, usually kept in check during the winter months, will again commence to grow.

Stringent muzzling and leash laws enforced in Hongkong are solely to protect humans from one of the most terrible maladies known.

Several people, including one European, have lost their lives in a most dreadful manner through contact with a rabid dog.

How To Fight GAS RAIDS

Red Cross Hints To Safeguard The Public

'WE MUST BE READY'

Measures for protecting the civilian population against gas attacks in wartime are described in a new manual (price 6d.) issued by the British Red Cross Society.

It is expected that the plans suggested by Major-General D. J. Collins and Major H. Stuart Blackmore in the new Red Cross book will form the basis of Hongkong measures.

A committee of experts recommends—

Provision of gas-proof shelters; Protection against non-persistent and persistent gases; Construction of new buildings and protection of food supplies and drinking water.

Training of decontaminating squads; and Organisation of gas centres or aid-posts and a system for warning of gas attacks.

"Early provision of gas-proof shelters is of great importance," the authors state, "as they furnish places where persons can take off their respirators during a gas attack and have food and drink; where dressing stations can carry on their duties; and where casualties may be treated."

TO MAKE ROOMS GAS-PROOF

"There is a possibility of civilians being shut up in the gas-proof shelters for as long as eight or twelve hours at a time."

"Any room with sound walls, roof and floor can be rendered gas-proof. The windows, if they do not fit tightly, should be puttied, and all other openings, including the windows, strips of cloth nailed round them to prevent the entrance of poisonous air."

"After a gas attack and when the surrounding area has been declared free from gas, fires should be lighted in the gas-proof shelters to draw in fresh air."

Anti-gas rattles "should be provided." No method which requires

During last year's epidemic six isolated cases of Rabies involving ten dogs occurred in Kowloon and the New Territories early in the summer, and one case in Hongkong.

Of the forty-four animal brains examined by the Government Bacteriologist for evidence of Rabies, eleven were found to be contaminated. This is the second highest total of the present decade, fourteen positive results being obtained from 64 brains examined in the previous year.

During 1935, 417 dogs, six monkeys, five cats and one guinea pig were placed under observation on account of suspicions of rabies. One of the cats and 65 dogs were destroyed and 21 dogs died whilst under observation.

HIGH INCIDENCE

The incidence of rabies has been much higher in Hongkong during the past two years than in the first part of the current decade.

In 1930, 1931 and 1932 a total of only three rabid infected animal brains were discovered by the Government Bacteriologist in 1933.

Then in 1934 the total leapt up to 14, receding slightly last year to 11. During the 1935 epidemic donkeys were also affected, one of these animals being destroyed under observation.

Cases of human rabies, resulting in the death of the victims, occurred in 1933, 1934 and 1935.

the use of the lungs should be employed.

"Food supplies should be protected by storage in bins or similar airtight receptacles or by covering them over with oilskins or tarpaulins," states the authors.

"It is safer to destroy all food that has been exposed to mustard gas."

In introducing the manual, General Collins and Major Blackmore state:—"We must be ready, on the outbreak of war, with all arrangements for dealing with aerial attack."

It is explained how liquids such as mustard gas or lewisite may be sprayed from tanks carried by aeroplanes or airships, the poison falling like rain on the ground beneath.

Cremation Not Popular In Hongkong

While the number of private interments in Hongkong remain fairly constant each year, there has been a big increase in the number of public interments since 1930.

In 1930 a total of 8,286 bodies were publicly interred, while 7,649 interments were carried out privately.

Last year there were 11,687 public interments, a record for the current decade, as compared with 8,478 private interments, a figure exceeded by those carried out in 1931.

Cremations are not proving popular in Hongkong. Since 1920 there have been only 196 cremations at the Japanese Crematorium, an average of 33 a year, and 126 at the Sikh Crematorium, an average of 21 a year. Last year and 1932 were record years at the Japanese Crematorium, when 40 bodies were cremated.

A. P. F. CHAPMAN HAS A FEW NAMES TO SUGGEST

"We need to find two really first-class bowlers in the coming cricket season if we are to have any hope of winning the next series of Test matches in Australia."

That remark was made in my presence the other day. My own opinion is that if we can unearth one we shall be fortunate.

Frankly, I cannot see where he is coming from. Every county, with its resources, its coaching schemes, and its constant, unremitting search in the highways and byways, is practically going through the country with a fine comb. No one yet seems to have made a discovery.

We appear to be in one of those cycles when English cricket is in the doldrums—a period similar to 1921-1924.

In 1926 Harold Larwood came into his own, and, with the help of Wilfrid Rhodes—brought back to Test warfare at the age of 40—we won that memorable match (and with it the Ashes) at the Oval.

UNDER A CLOUD

We had almost everything our own way in Australia in 1928-29.

We lost the rubber by two games to one to Australia here in 1930 and regained it under D. R. Jardine (with Larwood the mainstay of our attack) in Australia in 1932-33.

Then, beginning with the summer of 1934, our cricket came under a cloud, and, at the moment, I cannot see that cloud lifting.

Unless the team that leaves England next September includes in its number a new Larwood or a reinvigorated Verity, it will have all the difficulties of the team that that great cricketer the late Johnny Douglas captained in Australia 16 years ago, and its fate will probably be the same—all five matches won by Australia!

The first difficult task which faces the England selectors is that of deciding on the right captain.

There is no one ready-made for the job; and, so far as I can see, the choice rests between G. O. Allen of Middlesex and A. B. Sellers of Yorkshire.

KEEN AND DEPENDABLE

The factor which may weigh the scales in favour of Allen is that he has had experience of cricket in Australia. He bowled very well, with Larwood in Jardine's team in 1932-33; he is tremendously keen, is a brilliant field, a dependable batsman (especially in a tight corner), and one of the best fast bowlers we have.

That last-mentioned point might be more in his favour if he were a member of the side and not its leader. I am not enamoured of the idea of a speed bowler—or for that matter any type of front-line bowler—leading an England team in Australia.

But although Allen's experience of captaincy is limited—and he is not even the captain of his county team—he possesses qualifications which the selectors may feel they cannot overlook. He has, too, made great personal sacrifices to get himself fit.

Sellers, on the other hand, has done wonderful work with the Yorkshire team. His abilities as a captain are unquestioned; he is a very good batsman and a brilliant field.

But unless it were decided that he went as captain I cannot see him getting even a place in the team.

Here are the men whom I think we can regard as candidates for Australia:

Hammond (Gloucestershire); H. E. S. Wyatt (Warwickshire); Sutcliffe (Yorkshire); G. O. Allen (Middlesex); Nichols (Essex); R. W. V. Robins (Middlesex); Leyland (Yorkshire); Verity (Yorkshire); Ames (Kent); Duckworth (Lancashire).

Sutcliffe I regard as indispensable in a series of Tests played in Australia. I mention that because when England played South Africa here last summer I gave my reasons why he should be omitted from the side.

One cannot look elsewhere for the two wicket-keepers, unless the great improvement of Wood (Yorkshire) is taken into account.

It is in filling the other six places in the touring party of sixteen that the possibilities of making the greatest mistakes arise.

WATCH THESE MEN

Here are players whose form during the coming English season should be watched with great care:

E. R. T. Holmes (Surrey); R. H. Moore (Hampshire); Washbrook (Lancashire); Pollard (Lancashire); Dollery (Warwickshire); Todd (Kent); Pegg (Kent); Hardstaffe (Nottinghamshire); Wellard (Somerset); Copson (Derbyshire); Hutton (Yorkshire); Mitchell (Yorkshire); Smith (Derbyshire).

The list could be extended by bringing in a couple of Sussex men, and there is, of course, Bowes, the Yorkshire fast bowler. But we have two such bowlers already in Allen and Nichols, and as we know the strength of Bowes I would stress the claims for a trial of Copson and let the final decision rest on this season's form.

The All-India team is here, and even at the slight risk of our defeat in the three Test matches to be played I would put into the field an

PRESENTATION AT C.S.C.

MR. AND MRS. ALDERMAN RECEIVE SOUVENIRS

Mr. S. E. Alderman and his wife were the recipients of a tray and scent bottles from fellow members of the Civil Service Club last night to mark their departure from the Colony on retirement.

Alderman's severance with the sporting activities of the Club.

As a bowler and cricketer Mr. Alderman, who is on the Royal Naval Dockyard staff, has been associated with the C.S.C. since 1915.

In making the presentation on behalf of members, Mr. J. Deakin, Honorary Secretary, recalled Mr. Alderman's valuable work, and said he had been a member of the General Committee for many years, had belonged to the Bowls Committee and had helped them greatly in their cricket matches.

He hoped Mr. and Mrs. Alderman would have a long and happy retirement.

Mr. Alderman appropriately replied and humorously remarked that though he had longed to see his name on the Championship Shield he was afraid he had helped the Club to lose more bowls matches than any other member.

Mr. and Mrs. Alderman and family sail on the P. and O. liner Chitral on Saturday.

England side that had yet to win its spurs. I can see no value in choosing men who are experienced and who cannot be left out of the M.C.C. team in Australia, and I do not think that is derogatory to the India team.

Neither Australia nor South Africa that beat us here in 1934 and 1935.

Australia will be extremely powerful in the 1936-37 season. Don Bradman will have under his command a team of young men with the veteran Grimmett and the experienced O'Reilly as the mainstay of attack.

Can we not take our courage in both hands and include at least six men in the M.C.C. sixteen who are young and keen and are fighters? Especially must they be fighters.

Lawn Bowls Championship Matches

SEVERAL PLAYED YESTERDAY

A full programme of matches were decided yesterday afternoon in the Pairs Championship of the Hongkong Lawn Bowls Association.

Some of the games were not in complete accord with expectations, but there were no sensational results.

A. W. Grimmiti, a former champion, in partnership with C. Strange had no difficulty in winning on the Kowloon Bowling Green against T. B. Parks and M. Ferguson. The Civil Service pair won by 30-11. They scored two fours during the match and never at any time looked like being beaten.

On the Club de Recreio Green N. J. Bebbington and A. Hyde Lay beat S. J. Houghton and T. Ferguson by 28-16. The losers took the lead with a four on the first head and then a single, but when the winners chalked up a five on the fourth they went to the front to stay there throughout the match. On the 13th head Bebbington and Hyde Lay were leading 10-5. A five to the losers on the 18th head reduced the deficit, but the winners held the lead by 25-15.

L. Glendinning and J. Shepherd had a low scoring match against J. D. Thomson and G. E. F. Thompson, winning by 15-9, the highest score on any head was a two, the winners securing three and the losers one.

M. Souza and W. Field gained a narrow win on the Police Green yesterday against J. Watson and J. Fraser.

The score was 14-13 and the match was won on the last word when Field got inside the lying shot put up by Fraser on the previous roll.

Darkness threatened to postpone the decision in the game on the Civil Service Club green where V. C. Labrum and J. M. Jack lost to S. O. Bux and A. R. Minu by 12 shots to 10.

On the Indian Recreation Club rink, P. E. Knight and J. Hollidge encountered little opposition from L. H. Collyer and M. Purvis, winning by 22 shots to 12.

The winners showed consistent form, scoring a five on one head and two threes, while the losers scored two on four heads.

At the Talkoo Club, W. Greig and W. Mair defeated A. F. Paul and W. MacFarlane by 21 shots to 18.

Mair was the best player on view, laying some difficult shots. The winners scored a five on the 10th head and another on the 15th head.

The losers were leading by 13-11 on the 14th head, but were unable to score for the next five heads, during which their opponents score twelve shots to take a substantial lead.

The game between H. E. Strange and R. Z. Wood against M. Y. Adai and A. R. Dallah at the Electric Company green was left unfinished, the scores being 17-11 on the 10th head.

On the Kowloon Dock R.C. green, L. A. Gutierrez and A. A. dos Remedios defeated W. Gill and F. Goodman by 20 shots to 14.

Summer CAN'T LAST for Ever

... even in Kashmir, Garden of India. But this romantic story tells of the Summer of Love, which can last for ever!

—By MARGARET FERGUSON

CHAPTER I

AND so I've brought the cheque along with me, Miss Petrie, as I expect you would like to receive the money straight away. All this has been most unfortunate for you and a very sad ending to your trip to India. Would you please just here?"

Mechanically Phillida Petrie took the fountain pen and signed her name neatly at the foot of the crumpled sheet of paper that had been spread out before her.

The sticky heat of the room, the loud whirring of the fans, the queerness of everything made her head spin and ache.

Calcutta in May—Mrs. Larcombe, who had brought her out here as a secretary-companion, found a cheque for two hundred and fifty pounds, a legacy left her in Mrs. Larcombe's will, being pushed across the table to her at the end of her job, and her plans for the future were chaos and mud.

"Thank you very much, that is all quite clear now. I suppose that you will be leaving Calcutta very soon? Would you like me to book a passage for you home? I dare say I could arrange one more quickly and comfortably for you than the usual agents."

Mr. Potter, the local lawyer who had taken charge of Mrs. Larcombe's affairs, was only too ready to help—as everyone was in India—and seemed to him that this girl needed helping and looking after.

There was a sort of dated, faraway look on her delicately-cut face, and she certainly was a stranger to India and its ways. Probably the shock of Mrs. Larcombe's sudden death from heart stroke and the collapse of all her plans had stunned her for the time being. It was lucky that she had been left this small legacy to make up to her for the upset and trouble of the whole affair.

"I tell you what," he said kindly. "Come and dine with us to-night and talk things over with my wife. You must be feeling in rather a confusion just now and anxious to rest. At half-past eight—" "Thank you," Phillida said slowly, "it's very kind of you."

Mr. Potter bustled briskly out—no amount of damp heat seemed to lessen his briskness—and she was left alone in the big, cool hotel bedroom.

Slipping off her silk frock, she put on a thin kimono and lay down on the bed under the huge swinging fan that stirred up a moist, tepid air.

Already the heat had drained the colour out of Phillida's face, leaving it waxen pale, with blue veins showing at the temples. The mass of her copper-beech coloured hair that grew below her ears, seemed almost too heavy for it and the white lids above her deep grey-green eyes looked tired and weighed with fatigue.

She was tired, dreadfully tired. Everything in these last two or three months had been such a flurry.

First losing her secretarial job with the book publishers that she had worked for for five years. They had changed hands and the new owners had made a clean sweep of most of the old staff. Then those long, blank weeks of being out of a job. Then the meeting with Mrs. Larcombe, an authoress who was collecting materials for a travel book—and looking for a secretary to take out East with her. Then the bustle of leaving England and the voyage across India. And then Calcutta steaming under dark white skies, and Mrs. Larcombe's collapse one night from heat stroke, that ended fatally in a heart attack.

And now here she was jobless again and marooned in India, but the richer by two hundred and fifty pounds.

Slowly she got off the bed, picked up the cheque that was written out in Mr. Potter's neat handwriting, and went back to the bed, holding it in her hand that trembled a tiny bit.

Two hundred and fifty pounds—more than she had ever dreamt of holding in her hand all at once. What was she going to do with it? She knew what she would be expected to do with it by the sensible, level-headed people; put it by for a rainy day, keep it as a nest egg, invest it and get four or five pounds a year income from it. . . but she didn't want to do that. It seemed such a waste of it all, waste of the possibilities of that cheque. This trip to India had been such a thrill, coming just when she was aching for adventure, longing for a change, excitement, something different. And now it was over and Mr. Potter wanted to book her passage home to England by the next mail boat.

Well—was it all over? Phillida suddenly sat bolt upright on the bed, the dressing-gown sliding down off her narrow white shoulders, her thick hair stirring in the breeze from the fan, her eyes turning a shade brighter green as they always did when she was suddenly thrilled about something. Because she knew that she had no intention of putting that cheque into any bank as a nest egg, or of investing it.

She knew exactly what she was going to do with it.

Mrs. Potter was rather like her husband, plump, pink and kind-hearted. After dinner she and Phillida went and sat outside on the moonlit verandah to have a chat about things, as Mr. Potter had arranged, and Mrs. Potter was quite ready to chat, offer condolences and good advice and make useful suggestions.

"Quite apart from the shock of her death, this must have been a sad disappointment for you," she said. "I mean—you must have been looking forward to seeing India. Wasn't Mrs. Larcombe thinking of going up to Kashmir next summer?"

"Yes," Phillida said, "she was."

"Of course it was madness for a woman of her age to travel about India at this time of year. Ah, well!" Mrs. Potter heaved a gentle sigh.

"The point is—what are your plans going to be? Next year, I suppose you can get your passage on the P. & O. boat sailing next Friday."

HAPPENINGS AS SEEN BY THE CAMERA'S EYE

NEW RULER OF MILLIONS: H. M. S. KENT IN SHANGHAI

Lord Linlithgow, Viceroy and Governor-General of India, and Lady Linlithgow are shown here as they left their home in Chester Place, London, on their way to Delhi, where Lord Linlithgow has already taken up his appointment. He succeeded Lord Willingdon as Viceroy of India. Lord Linlithgow, who was born in 1887, served in the Great War, being mentioned in despatches. In 1922-24 he was Civil Lord of the Admiralty. He has had considerable experience in Indian affairs, acting as Chairman of the Royal Commission on Indian agriculture (1926-28) and Chairman of the joint select council on Indian Constitutional Reform (1933).

H. M. S. Kent, flagship of Admiral Sir Charles Little, reached Shanghai last week and anchored at the British Naval Buoy off the Bund. Shortly after her arrival an official party headed by Sir John Brennan, H. M. Consul-General, and including Brigadier F. S. Thackeray, commanding British Troops, Shanghai Area, left for the flagship by launch. Lower photo shows the British cruiser as she berthed. Upper photo shows the British naval launch leaving the Customs Jetty with the official party to call upon Admiral Little.

TRAGIC CAR DIVE AT YANGTZEPOO

Pictures taken at the scene of a recent Shanghai car tragedy, in which eight persons lost their lives. Two of the victims were still in the car when hoisted from the water, as shown in the top photograph. Lower picture shows divers going down to attach slings to the car and to search for further victims.

BLACK LEGION OUTRAGE

RELIEF WORKER FLOGGED

POLICE SEEK 25 SUSPECTS

Detroit, May 26. A cowardly attack on another relief worker, attributed to the Black Legion, has startled an already nervous city where no man knows whether or not his name appears on the punishment list of the secret society.

This latest victim was carried off, stripped and flogged, allegedly because he refused to join the strange cult.

Warrants have been issued for the arrest of twenty-five men charged with kidnapping and felonious assault in connection with this outrage. The accused men include three brothers, all of whom are guards in a southern Michigan prison.

Meanwhile, a member of the Black Legion in Lima, Ohio, named Effinger, who is wanted for questioning, says the unlawful acts attributed to the society have been committed by irresponsible persons. He claims the membership of the society, which he declares has legitimate aims, numbers over 6,000,000. He declares the members desire only to promote the best interests of America.—Reuter.

ARSON AND BOMBINGS

Detroit, May 26. Investigators are delving into the possibility of the Black Legion being responsible for the burning of Father Coughlin's Shrine of the Little Flower on March 17, amongst numerous other bombings and acts of arson attributed to this society.

The Jackson County Grand Jury has indicted a number of men for the kidnapping and assault of Halley Smith, a relief worker, on November 15.

Warden Harry Jackson, of the State Prison, has dismissed two more guards because they are members of the Black Legion, bringing the total to four discharged for that reason.

Governor Fitzgerald has ordered the summary dismissal of every state worker proved a member of the Legion and Mayor Couzens has issued similar instructions in Detroit.

The Detroit Times has found a Legion membership application blank signed by the State Prosecutor, Mr. McCrea, in the Legion's files. Mr. McCrea admits the signature resembles his but adds, "I was never a member."—United Press.

FIVE DIE AS FOREST BLAZES

MANY MISSING IN NEW JERSEY

BAD FIRE IN 'FRISCO

New Gretna, N. J., May 26. Five are dead and seven in hospital as a result of the worst forest fire in the history of the state of New Jersey.

Thirty-three other persons were reported missing earlier, but seventeen of these are now accounted for. A total of 15,000 acres of timber was destroyed.

The blaze raged for 48 hours. Just as 750 weary fire-fighters in the early morning relaxed their watch in the belief that they had conquered it, the fire broke out again. Only a superhuman rally, directed by radio from an aeroplane, led to the final subduing of the conflagration.

Scores of families were forced to flee from their homes along the busy highway between New York and Atlantic City.—Reuter.

SAN FRANCISCO FIRE

San Francisco, May 26. The worst fire in years swept the city's waterfront to-day, consuming thousands of dollars of lumber in three yards and destroying several buildings, the South Pacific trestle, disrupting railroad traffic, and forcing thousands of peninsula commuters to leave the trains and make their way home through several miles of flame-swept area.

The fire started in a sewer beneath the S.P.R. trestle and was carried to the surface of the Third Street channel. Blazing oil residue spread the fire over four blocks.

Seven ships loaded with lumber were trapped in a sea of flames and were forced to cut drift.

Fifty fire engines, assisted by fireboats, eventually controlled the flames. An unidentified spectator died of heart failure and several firemen were injured, two seriously.—United Press.
